Clarke of the Old Sun.
What Will Big Steel Do?
Lady of Old Australia.
Shaw Will Talk.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

SELAH MERRILL CLARKE died in his 80th year. S. S. Carvalho, a first-class newspaperman and publisher, who knew Clarke better than any of his surviving associates, said of him yesterday:

"Clarke was the greatest man, from the news point of view, that ever lived."

This writer, as a reporter on Charles A. Dana's New York Sun, knew Clarke, then night editor, a thin, concentrated red-haired New England type of man, not unlike Morrill Goddard of the American Weekly.

A YOUNG REPORTER having solemnly prepared some erudite, convincing and important article, half news, half editorial, would hand it to "Mr. Clarke," only to see it drop into the wastebasket as he returned to his seat, with Clarke scribbling three or four lines that contained all the news of the article, plus good writing.

THE OPENING of a national convention chanced to follow Clarke's day off. Several men, Julian Ralph and half a dozen other good writers and copy readers, sat at a long table comparing notes and dispatches from correspondents and news agencies. Next day Clarke returned, sat in his corner, lit his clay pipe and admirably, without help, did the work that the half dozen had done, making one perfect running story of all the day's news.

Clarke, a great man in the newspaper world, wanted neither praise nor gratitude. He deserves both from many taught by him, including this writer.

"WHAT WILL BIG STEEL DO AT TODAY'S MEETING?"

Will United States Steel reduce its dividend at today's meeting? PROBABLY.

Will any step be taken toward reducing wages today? PROBABLY NOT. Dividend and wage reduction at once would be too much of a shock for Washington and "the Street."

AFTER dividend reduction it may seem reasonable to say:

"Capital has taken its medicine and labor should do so."

That will not seem convincing to labor.

A dividend reducton to 5 per cent will not be taken seriously by any but "jumpy" stock speculators.

Steel sold as low as 89⅛ yesterday and closed at 92⅛.

Leaving out past performances, 5 per cent is a good return on a stock at that price.

THOSE THAT SELL, and are able to hold, will regret it and bang their heads on the bedpost when good times come back.

Mr. Lamont, secretary of commerce, says corporations but hard cannot reasonably be asked to refrain from wage cuts. It needs no ghost come from the grave to tell you that a man who hasn't the money to meet the payroll, can't meet it.

IT WAS A SAD slow day in Wall street by the way, although money for speculation cost only 1½ per cent a year. The poor brokers sold only 600,000 shares of stock.

Some will sell their seats, cheap, and they, too, will bang their heads on the bedpost later. We have seen nothing yet in the way of stock speculation. Wait until the next boom comes. Hold your seat for $750,000, at least.

IN AUSTRALIA have been found fragments of a young woman who lived when "human beings were still attempting to walk erect and talk articulately."

Hers is "the most primitive complete human skull ever discovered."

The back of the skull you will be sorry to hear, "resembles that of an anthropoid ape."

The lady, who lived, perhaps, when Australia was not yet separated from the continent, had a brain capacity about half that of a modern human being.

AND, MOST interesting, she proves that the muscular system "by means of which man maintains an erect posture, dominates the intellectual system."

However, the intellectual system also dominates the muscular. It was intellectual curiosity that made our primitive ancestors stand on their hind legs to look above the deep grass and bushes, to spy out dangers.

Later, that intellectual curiosity made us stand still straighter, and turn our skulls backward, that we might look at the stars.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, praising Russians, their methods, asks:

"Why did not England begin this instead of Russia?"

Such remarks worry the "good capitalists" of all countries.

Let Emma Goldman, Upton Sinclair, or some other seriously professional radical, praise Russia. That doesn't matter. But you cannot "laugh off" Shaw, although his opinions mean less than those of the real radical.

THE WORST of it is that newspapers everywhere print what Shaw says and capital is very timid, never more so than now. When you mention Russia the capitalist feels like Father at the sound of the sword, "nothung." Motif.

Money's timidity is one cause of our trouble. It hides away, instead of going to work. Adolph S. Ochs put important truth in few words when he said that unemployed men pre-

PRIVATE BARR

Parks 3 Days, but Superior Fails To Appear

Pvt. Barr, who joined the Marines to see the world, has been looking it over from the lobby of the William Penn Hotel for three days now.

Granted a leave of absence from his duties as chauffeur to Commander J. H. Ingram, Barr went to his home in Wheeling 10 days ago. He was under orders to meet his commander in the hotel lobby Sunday at 6 p. m.

Arriving in Pittsburgh Sunday, Barr took up his post. Sunday passed and so did Monday. Orders are orders and in the lobby Barr stayed.

Monday afternoon he received a telegram from Ingram to meet him at 6 p. m. that day. Six p. m. came as usual but Ingram didn't.

At last reports the commander was somewhere between Lisbon, O. and Pittsburgh and Barr was wondering if there isn't a trick in that "Join the Marines and See the World" gag.

U. S. STEEL WON'T CUT WAGES

May Reduce Salaries of Officers, However; Slash In Dividend Today Seen

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The administration's alarm over reports that the United States Steel Corporation, long a barometer of American industry, contemplated a reduction in workers' wages has been relieved, it was learned today by officials informing President Hoover that present wage levels will be maintained indefinitely.

The giant corporation, a leader on the New York Stock Exchange for decades, may reduce the salaries of its officers, it was said, but will leave unchanged the present scale of wages paid to ordinary workers. This assurance was reported to have been communicated directly to President Hoover.

INQUIRIES MADE

The administration made inquiries into the steel corporation's plans, it was said, when rumors prevailed that wages would be slashed to offset an expected reduction in the corporation's quarterly dividend due to be acted on today. The President was deeply concerned by the rumor, according to one authority, and personally initiated the inquiry. Officials of the concern protested they had no such plan in mind, even though salaries might be reduced.

The greatest fear of the administration in event the steel unit cuts wages, was not merely the loss in income to steel workers but the example set to the rest of industry. It was felt that, if steel wages were reduced, every other industry of like proportions would follow suit, thus bringing a fresh collapse in economic conditions. These fears were allayed by the assurances given the President.

Dauler's father, H. N. Dauler, president of the Dauler Benzol Company, was in New York on a business trip and when notified of the accident made preparations to fly to Gettysburg.

The youths were on their way to Philadelphia.

A car driven by Harry E. Riddlemoser, McKnightstown, traveling west on the highway, started to make a left turn from the road directly in front of Dauler's machine.

The dead boy was graduated from Haverford Preparatory School, near Philadelphia, this year, and was going to Bethlehem from Pittsburgh to enroll at Lehigh University.

The New York-to-Turkey monoplane Cape Cod, jockeyed by Russell Boardman and John Polando, of Boston, shot away from Floyd Bennett Field at 5:59 a. m.

Seventeen minutes later the round-the-world plane, Miss Veedol, took off with Moscow as the next intended stop. Piloted by Clyde E. Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, of New York, the plane is out to lower the 8½-day globe-circling record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

Two Navy plane escorted the flying teams until they reached the open sea.

FLY TOGETHER.

Both planes followed the northern route and were expected to be within sight of each other throughout the "big jump."

Although no reports had been received of them several hours later, fliers here expressed no fear as to their safety.

Both monoplanes are of the same type and approximately of the same cruising speed.

Neither of the planes is equipped with radio. The Pangborn-Herndon machine carries no emergency life rafts or preservers, although the Cape Code contains two life jackets.

Weather conditions were reported fairly good along the route, Dr. James Kimball, weather bu-

The descent was made off Hooker Island in the Franz Josef archipelago on the eighty-first parallel of latitude, inside of which lies the vast expanse of unexplored territory surrounding the North Pole.

The 16 passengers and 30 members of the crew aboard the Graf Zeppelin enjoyed an experience unparalleled in the history of polar navigation, when the Graf settled easily on the frigid water, making the first practical use of the pontoons which had been fastened to her keel before the ship left Friedrichshafen on its expedition to the top of the world.

"We received information the trio planned to force the man back to Pittsburgh with them. As it turned out we were mistaken.

"The incident of course is unfortunate from the point of view of the three men held. It is part of our duty to attempt to prevent crime at its inception. That was simply what we were trying to do. In this case the men were innocent. I can only say again, it was unfortunate."

NO WAGE CUT PLANNED

nouncement of their decision will be delayed until the stock exchange closes. The stock has paid a $7 annual dividend since early 1926.

That the steel dividend will be lowered was learned on the highest possible authority.

Today's meeting of the steel directors is the most momentous gathering of its kind during the present economic depression.

The financial and business community is generally reconciled to a dividend reduction on the corporation's $868,000,000 common capitalization, but a reduction in the rate below $5 would prove a shock.

Independents Await U. S. Steel's Action

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 28.—Independent steel companies will follow the lead of the United States Steel Corporation in the matter of wage rates, leaders in the trade said today, if the leading interest cuts basic wage rates similar reductions will be made by Midwestern mills and it is believed the independent industry generally will follow the same practice. STIMSON TELLS BERLIN TO QUIT COMPLAINING

Time for Germany to Help Self, Secretary Warns Reich Leaders on Visit

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Service.

LONDON, July 28.—A strong warning to Germany that the time has now come for Germans to help themselves out of their economic difficulties and end their complaining was delivered by Col. Henry L. Stimson, United States secretary of state, shortly before he left Berlin for London, International News Service learned on reliable authority today.

The American secretary, who has returned to London for a brief vacation following his week-end conferences with German officials, set forth what is believed to be the official American viewpoint toward the crisis in Germany.

MUST HELP SELVES

That viewpoint is that all the outside help that is possible has now been given and that the task now rests with the German people to put their shoulders to the wheel and revive confidence in themselves and their future.

In addition to telling Germany it must work out its own salvation, Secretary Stimson inveighed strongly against any attempt by Germany to increase its armaments at the present time.

TWO PLANES ARE SPEEDING OVER OCEAN

Herndon, Pangborn Seek to Beat Round World Mark; Turkey Goal for Other 2

The pair of giant planes were fueled to the limit. The New York-to-Turkey machine carried 738 gallons of gasoline. The New York-to-Moscow plane carried 830 gallons.

5,000-MILE HOPS

The approximate distance from here to Turkey is 5,000 miles. The route from New York to Moscow is approximately 5,100 miles.

The Pangborn-Herndon plane is powered with a 425-horsepower motor. The Boardman-Polando plane has a 500-horsepower motor.

The Turkey-bound plane started down the runway slowly and gradually lifted its heavy load into the air after a glide of about 4,000 feet. It slowly gained altitude and headed into the clouds.

Meanwhile Pangborn and Herndon were warming up the motor of the Miss Veedol. They taxied down to the runaway. After tearing along for 3,500 feet the plane took to the air in a single great leap.

Pangborn seemed to gain altitude more quickly than the first plane. As the pilot circled the field, he waved to the crowd and disappeared over Jamaica Bay.

MOTHER, WIFE THERE

Herndon's mother and wife were at the flying field to see him off.

Herndon smilingly refused to pose for newspaper photographers with them before the hopoff. He said:

"When I return and if I have made a record, I'll pose with them for a picture, but not before."

However, the two flying teams consented to pose together before they took off.

The northern route followed by the fliers will take them along the Atlantic coast to Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, and from there out across the Atlantic to Ireland.

Neither planned to stop in Harbor Grace, but intended to make it a straight jump "across the lake."

Boardman and Polando up until last night intended to take the southern route. But later Dr. Kimball advised that the northern route would be preferable. He said that although the fliers would encounter fog at some points, they would have helping winds all the way across the ocean.

BORROWS HELMET

Boardman, before taking off, misplaced his flying helmet and goggles. He borrowed some from a newspaperman who was going up in a plane. He said:

Lieut. Whitehead reported that when he left the plane, Pangborn had turned the controls over to Herndon and was studying maps.

The Pangborn-Herndon plane is painted a striking solid red. The name Miss Veedol is branded in white letters a foot and a half deep on the side of the fuselage.

The Boardman-Polando plane has brilliant yellow wings and fuselage of black and yellow. It carries the name Cape Cod and a map of the latter on its fuselage. The number NR-761-W appears on the top of the tail, the top of the right wing and the bottom of the left wing.

Boardman carried with him 3,000 postal cards which he will mail to persons who bought them. The receipts helped finance his flight. Most of these postals were sold last summer to members of the American Legion at the war veterans' convention in Boston.

Frank Dorbrandt, air mail pilot and side-kick of Pangborn, who came here from Alaska just to see his pal off, followed the round-the-world plane in another ship for a short distance. Dorbrandt praised the take-off of the plane. He said:

"After Pangborn straightened the ship out, he got her going at about 125 miles an hour. Then he throttled her down to about 100 miles and was flying at an altitude of about 100 feet.

"I could see he was getting the feel of the plane with its load, and every once in a while he would dive down suddenly and then come up.

"My guess is that they will make it."

Guiseppe Bellanca, who designed the planes for both flying teams, was also at the two take-offs. He said he was well pleased with the general performance of both planes.

Americans on Liner Greet Wilkins Heading for Pole

PLYMOUTH, July 28 (AP).—The submarine Nautilus, in which Sir Hubert Wilkins plans to cross the North Pole under the ice, left today for Bergen, Norway, en route to the Arctic.

Hundreds of Americans witnessed the departure of Sir Hubert in his little craft as she passed alongside the Mauretania, just in from New York.

On the way out the submarine passed close to a tender carrying ashore the Mauretania's passengers for Plymouth, among them Ambassador Charles Gates Dawes. Cheers were exchanged between the passengers and the officers and crew of the Nautilus.

The submersible passed into the bay where the Mauretania rode at anchor and headed for the English Channel and the North Pole with her first port of call probably Bergen.

BISHOP ORDERS SAFETY QUIZ AT CATHOLIC INSTITUTIONS

FORMS EXPERT COMMITTEE FOR SURVEY

Engineers Will Make Report Following Investigation As Result of Home Fire

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle today is forming a committee that will head a group of engineers and experts to investigate and inspect every Catholic institution in the 10 counties comprising the Catholic diocese of Pittsburgh.

The engineers will report their findings after making a thorough survey, direct to the bishop.

Based on it, the head of the diocese hopes to be able to apply remedies necessary or possible.

PLAN ANNOUNCED

The plan of inspection was announced by the bishop today, as the death toll in the home of Little Sisters of the Poor fire reached 42. Bishop Boyle said:

"I want this to be a thorough inspection. Of course we cannot scrap old buildings. We couldn't afford it. It's impossible in many cases to make every correction necessary, and dropping the work is impractical. But whatever remedies we can apply we will.

"This is to be no passing inspection, but a real one."

The plan followed Bishop Boyle's hurried return from St. Louis and his inspection yesterday of the ruins of the Penn avenue home.

Shocked by the tragedy, he conferred last night with a group of laymen and clergy to determine what means could be put in force to aid the aged men and women victims.

Further meetings will bring out some systematic manner of getting funds for a new home they believe, as soon as preliminaries are ironed out.

REAL INSPECTION

The inspection of the Catholic institutions will be extensive due to the number of charitable and educational buildings scattered over the diocese. In Pittsburgh alone there are a score or more of hospitals and homes where the sisters attend the unfortunate. These will be visited and their needs noted.

Following his inspection of the charred home on Penn avenue yesterday, Bishop Boyle said:

"It takes terrible misfortunes of this sort to bring us all closer together. In prosperity, sometimes we drift apart, but not in trouble."

DELAY IN HEALY TRIAL MYSTERY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 28.—(INS.)—United States Attorney Henry M. Boss, Jr., today said he had no statement to make as to why prosecution of William F. Healey, former discount clerk and note teller at the Exchange branch of the Industrial Trust Company, accused of embezzlement of bank funds to the extent of $103,092, had been deferred until the present time, although he admitted that the alleged defalcations had been discovered in 1929.

Boss also stated that the bank had suffered no loss as a result of Healey's alleged speculations explaining that although the indictment charges Healey with having used $103,092 of the bank's funds through manipulation of managers checks, the actual shortage amounted only to $45,000. This shortage is said to have been made up by Otto Felix, wealthy manufacturer of Pittsburgh, and father-in-law of Healey.

Healey, pleading not guilty, was released in bail of $10,000.

POLITICS HALTS OPENING OF AIRPORT

Dedication September 12 Blocked by McGovern as Rostrum for Candidates

The September primary election probably has delayed the opening of the new county airport, which was scheduled for September 12, three days before the balloting.

C. W. Forcier, manager of the port, appeared before the County Commissioners today seeking approval to contract stunt fliers and parachute jumpers and post prizes for air races as part of the opening ceremonies.

Commissioner McGovern asked:

"When did you say that opening was?"

"September 12?"

"Well, don't have it until after September 15. If you do, it will be nothing but a political proposition."

On the motion of Commissioner McGovern, action on Forcier's request was postponed.

AUDIT OF POOR BOARD VETOED

All the fuss about auditing the County Poor Directors' books blew up in the County Commissioners' meeting today.

County Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher submitted an opinion that neither the Commissioners nor the County Controller have any right to make such an audit.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern made a motion that the solicitor's opinion be disregarded and the audit made immediately, either "to prove the charges that have been made or to vindicate the Poor Directors."

And then a letter was read from the directors themselves.

It told the Commissioners that an audit would be welcomed at any time and that the directors would make no attempt to oppose it.

TODAY'S RUINS OF BLAZE THAT SWEPT BEAVER BUSINESS DISTRICT, DESTROYING THREE BUILDINGS, DAMAGING OTHERS

Friend of Assailant Slain by Fagan Linked In Labor Camp Holdup

Homicide detectives today were investigating a tip that Edward Schneider, alias Fred Snyder, 39, of Fleming, Ky., alleged accomplice in the attempted assassination of P. T. Fagan, union mine leader, was implicated in the holdup of a labor camp and another robbery in this district.

They were to check with the county detectives on Schneider's activities. Chief George W. Murren, of the county detectives, said his men had viewed Schneider yesterday, but were unable to identify him.

Schneider was held for court by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Station, today, charged with conspiracy, pointing firearms and carrying concealed weapons. According to testimony Schneider drove in a taxicab to Fagan's home with a man known as Pat Murphy, whom Fagan shot and killed after wresting his revolver from him.

TELLS OF BOASTS

Mrs. Nancy Ross and Mrs. Pearl Barlow, of 25 East General Robinson street, where Schneider and Murphy roomed, testified they had seen Murphy with a large pearl-handled revolver and that later Schneider brandished the same weapon with the remark:

"I'm a bad gangster from Chi and New York."

Sergt. Samuel Wheeler, of the homicide squad, testified his investigation had disclosed Schneider as a bigamist. He has one wife in Fleming, Ky., another in Cleveland and a third in Pittsburgh, Wheeler testified.

DENY CONSPIRACY

The National Miners' Union through its secretary, Frank Borich, today issued a statement denying knowledge of a plot against Fagan's life, or any connection with either the dead would-be slayer and his companion.

Prosecutor Cecil C. Hallin, of Cowlitz County, who had sought to return Hudson to Kelso, the county seat, declared he had gone as far as he could in the matter and Hudson would be tried only if he returned voluntarily.

Previously a referendum vote had been taken and while the project was indorsed by a two to one vote, Potentate Heard said it was not of sufficient volume. Only about one tenth of the membership voted.

DENIALS CLOUD MYSTERY CRASH

A woman's hat and slipper found in the wreckage of an automobile in Saw Mill Run boulevard early today provided police at Overbrook with a mystery which deepened with the denial of the machine owner that anyone had been with him at the time of the accident.

Edmund Lyons, 12 Ansonia street, alleged owner, notified a towing company to recover the automobile which had plunged down an embankment and overturned against a tree. Police, investigating the crash, found the articles of women's apparel and said they had no report of the accident. The driver of the tow-truck, however, denied that no report had been made.

Baker, former secretary of war, expressed the opinion here last night that major political parties will promise bread rather than drink to the people in the 1932 presidential campaign. Whole Indian Tribe Faces Quiz in Co-Ed Murder

WHITE RIVER, Ariz., July 28.—(INS.)—With the United States Secret Service moving swiftly to solve the murder of Miss Henrietta Schmerler, 23, Columbia University co-ed, her death was still as mysterious today as the ways of the Apache Indian which she was studying for her college degree.

More than a hundred young Indians and three white men were under surveillance but none was under arrest and it was declared that every one of the 1,500 Apaches residing on White River Reservation might be questioned before the murder is solved.

Miss Schmerler was found dead in a gulch nearly a week after she left her lonely cabin to witness a dance ceremonial in honor of the fire god. She had been attacked, an examination showed, struck over the head, knifed and strangled.

STRAY BULLET INJURES GIRL; BOY HELD

Others Periled in North Side Playground Shooting Held Accident by Prisoner

The shooting of Ellrita McNally, 13, 3011 Viola street, in the Milroy School playgrounds, last evening, and endangering of nearly a score of children, was accidental, it was testified in Morals Court today. Joseph Ackerman, 16, of 416 Catoma street, who said his revolver was discharged accidentally, was held over, and Albert Graham, 17, of 4 Milroy street, was discharged.

The McNally girl was sitting on a swing when Ackerman, standing about 20 feet away, took the revolver from his pocket, it was testified. He said it was accidentally discharged. Sarah Smith, 15, of 3009 Viola street, testified two shots were fired. A shot struck the McNally girl in the leg, but she didn't know she was injured for several minutes. Ackerman, learning of the shooting later, threw the gun away and it was picked up by Graham. Ackerman said he found the gun while en route to the park.

While money remains idle men must be idle.

JOHN R. VOORHIS was at his office in New York City at 9 o'clock yesterday morning for the regular meeting of the board of elections of which he is president. Yesterday was Mr. Voorhis' one hundred and second birthday.

That is important because it shows that the thing can be done. Men can live past one hundred. And some day all of us will live beyond one hundred and fifty. Families will be smaller, only two children for each husband and wife on the average.

And following Plato's advice men will become fathers late in life, between 60 or 70 perhaps at the height of their physical powers, or later, between 80 and 100 at the height of their mental power.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union will learn gladly that Mr. Voorhis gave up smoking at 98.

THESE ARE DAYS of quick killing. In Carolina a British judge in his court was shot dead by a native. Police immediately killed his murderer.

A long way from India in Pennsylvania, Patrick Fagan, district president of the United Mine Workers of America, was faced on his front porch by an apparent killer.

Patrick Fagan knocked the man down, took his gun and shot him dead.

When planning to kill anybody named Patrick Fagan, it is wise not to tell him about it.

ELI H. OTIS, recently secretary-treasurer of the Newspaper Delivery Union of Chicago, is secretary no more. Three men fired slugs into his automobile and departed, nothing on saying.

"Oh, boy, we sure got him that time."

Apart from that remark the killing was more routine. Otis had taken the place in the union of an ex-convict once convicted of a big mail robbery and again in a $500,000 liquor warehouse robbery.

Unions for their own sake and preservation, should refrain from putting ex-convicts in official positions. If racketeering goes too far in unions, unions will die.

"consistency's a jewel!"

One Pittsburgh food store advertises that their "butter stands up because it is a quality butter" and "stands up because it is fresher." They claim that "a hot ride home in the street car has little effect on their butter"—and yet they are now wrapping Dry Ice with their butter—if requested—and make a CHARGE for it.

IF their butter "stands up in hot weather" why do they SELL Dry Ice?

The priceless element of advertising is truthfulness.

Here at Donahoe's we are frank to admit that enclosing Dry Ice with butter is necessary these blazing July days, that is, if you want to bring home butter as delicately flavored, as temptingly fresh and as firm as it is when you buy it downtown. AIR NOTABLES AT WEDDING

WASHINGTON, July 28. (AP)—The National Aeronautic Association furnished the background and half of the principals for a wedding.

Potter H. Adams, its former president, was the bridegroom. Miss Sue Shotter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Shotter of this city, was the bride.

Amelia Earhart, one of the association's outstanding women members, was matron of honor. Senator Bingham of Connecticut, its president, was best man.

Many aviation notables who last week attended the annual convention of the organization, remained for the wedding.

Following a wedding motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Adams will go to their summer home, Acre Acres, near Thetford, Vt.

Park Policemen Give Sleepers Call Service

WASHINGTON, July 28. (AP)—Instead of a crack on the shoe with a nightstick, park police here are waking them up with a light tap on the shoulder and with the smiling remark: "It's time to go to work, sir."

Sunday night 272 persons slept in the parks, the majority of them to escape the heat. Some had no other place to sleep. The police have willingly complied with all requests to be awakened. Most of the outdoor sleepers are called between 7 and 7:30 a. m.

'Pittsburgh Hymie' To Ask New Trial

CLEVELAND, July 28. (AP)—Motion for a new trial for "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary for the murder of former Councilman William E. Potter, probably will be filed Friday, Attorney William E. Marshall said today.

Marshall said he had "newly discovered evidence of a startling nature." One motion for a new trial has been denied.

ASKS GUARDIAN FOR SEARLES

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., July 28. (AP)—Mrs. Victor A. Searles of Palm Beach, New York and Atlantic City, is seeking appointment of a guardian for her wealthy sportsman husband, charging him with habitual drunkenness and lavishing money on other women.

The charges were brought in an amended bill of complaint filed yesterday in her suit for separate maintenance for herself and their 5-year-old daughter. The bill asks $2,000 monthly for Mrs. Searles and the child, Betty.

The complaint sets out that Mrs. Searles is informed that her husband is now being investigated by the Department of Justice.

What and Why?

Offering Readers of This Newspaper

$25.00 Every Day in Cash Prizes

For Finding the Best Bargains Offered by Advertisers in the Sun-Telegraph

Here's the Idea . . .

You know that the advertising announcements in the Sun-Telegraph are teeming with bargains.

What are these bargains? What are you finding? Why, in your mind, are they bargains? Within a day or two you have undoubtedly made purchases from the advertisers who are in the columns of the Sun-Telegraph and you had a special reason for buying their particular goods. Something in particular drew your attention to these bargains. What was it—the price, the quality, or both?

You are shopping every day. Let's make it doubly profitable to you. Study the advertising announcements in the Sun-Telegraph, see what you really need, examine the goods offered. If the article or articles be something that you want and the price is satisfactory, make your purchase and then tell the "What and Why" Editor of the Sun-Telegraph why you made the purchase.

Confine your letter to 100 words or less. Tell in your own way why you think the article you purchased was a bargain at the price you paid for it, but bear in mind that the article you refer to must have appeared in the advertising announcements in the Sun-Telegraph. The purchase ticket must accompany your letter and the date the announcement appeared in this newspaper.

READ THESE SIMPLE RULES:

(1) The "What and Why?" contest is sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, not for urging readers to purchase what they do not need, but with the idea in mind of emphasizing the fact that the counters in the Pittsburgh stores are today filled with real bargains. The Sun-Telegraph knows that many readers of this newspaper will take advantage of these sale offers as they are them announced in this newspaper, and is anxious to tell all readers about these bargains and why they are bargains. The purchase price of the article does not enter into the rules of the contest. You may find a bargain for a penny—any price. But if you find a bargain, tell us what it is and why in a letter of less than 100 words.

(2) The bargain must have been announced in the DISPLAY advertising of the daily or Sunday Sun-Telegraph and your letter must mention the day and date the announcement appeared, and be accompanied by the sales slip given to you at the time of purchase. Address your bargain letters to the "What and Why?" Editor, The Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. They should be written and mailed not later than 24 hours after the purchase has been made.

$25.00 in Daily Cash Prizes

First Best Letter	$10.00
Second Best Letter	5.00
Third Best Letter	3.00
Fourth Best Letter	2.00
Five Next Best Letters, each $1.00	5.00
	$25.00

(3) Cash prizes will be awarded for the best "What and Why?" bargain letters.

See List of Prizes Above

(4) The names of winners will be announced in the Sun-Telegraph one week later from the day the bargain announcement was made in this newspaper. This means that there should be no delay in sending in your contest letters and sales slips.

(5) Employes of the Sun-Telegraph or members of their families are not eligible for entry. In cases where the judges decide that letters are of equal merit duplicate awards will be made. All letters submitted automatically become property of the Sun-Telegraph, with the right to use them as this newspaper may so determine. No correspondence pertaining to the contest will be answered. The "What and Why?" bargain letter contest will run for two weeks—or longer, at the option of the Sun-Telegraph.

START TODAY! Read the Advertisements

in the Sun-Telegraph, look for what you need, examine the goods offered, and if you think you have found a bargain, tell the Sun-Telegraph about it.

PRAISE GIVEN MANSFIELD

State Senator William D. Mansfield of McKeesport was commended for his record in the legislatures of 1929 and 1931 in a resolution recently adopted by the legislative and executive committees of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Many measures sponsored by Mansfield are now on the statute books, the resolution sets forth, including those increasing the efficiency of the Pennsylvania public school system, advancing education, strengthening the laws governing elections and especially co-operating in the passage of uniform codes for fourth class boroughs, third-class cities and counties.

Have You Athlete's Foot?

Look at your feet tonight and especially under and between toes. You may be infected with the vegetable parasite known to science as Tinea Trichophyton. Let's hope they are not.

When this parasite first attacks there is an eruption followed by intense itching and burning and if not caught in time the disease usually spreads along the sole and sides of the foot. It may spread to other parts of the body.

CAUTION—The disease is infectious; someone in your own home may have it. Find out tonight. Beware of bath mats; either at home or in hotels use a newspaper. It's safer.

TREATMENT—Apply Moone's Emerald Oil generously, not only under and between the toes but over the bottom and sides of foot. This powerful oil soothes and penetrates, stops the itching at once and checks growth of the germs.

Pharmacists everywhere in America dispense Emerald Oil in 35 cent bottle that lasts weeks. Is guaranteed to drive away every symptom of Athlete's Foot or money back.

FOOLISH TO LET A CORN HURT YOU

What a painful mistake to make! Tormenting corns may come, try as you will to avoid them—but they need not stay. And you can stop their hurting instantly.

How? Merely by cushioning them from the pressure and chafing that cause the pain. Just let a velvet-soft Blue-jay corn plaster circle the tingling spot, and you'll almost feel the grateful relief surging to soothe your nerves.

Blue-jay is the safe, sensible treatment for corns, used by millions for 31 years. Far safer than rapid-fire "cures" or risky paring. It medicates the corn gently—gradually softens and detaches it.

You can rely on Blue-jay because it is a product of Bauer & Black, noted makers of surgical dressings. Keeps handy always—stop corns at the start! At all drug stores, 25 cents.

Irving Pichel Will Play Old Chaney Role in Next Bancroft Film

By HARRISON CARROLL,

Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.

HOLLYWOOD, July 28.

That screen classic, "The Miracle Man," will be made into a talkie with George Bancroft playing the Thomas Meighan role of the confidence man.

All in all, the announcement is about the most exciting to come out of Hollywood in several months. "The Miracle Man" was one of the greatest popular successes of its day. It made the screen reputations of Thomas Meighan, Betty Compson and the late Lon Chaney.

Paramount in buying the dialogue rights undoubtedly has turned a neat piece of business for itself. And Mr. Bancroft gets a great role handed to him on a silver platter.

George Bancroft

While the deal still is too fresh for a complete cast to be announced, Irving Pichel has been selected to recreate the Lon Chaney part of the fake cripple. The girl and the blind healer, whose simple faith eventually converts the racketeers, are yet to be chosen. Needless to say, there will be a wild scramble for the parts.

Only a little more than a year ago I saw a faded, dimpy print of "The Miracle Man," and the picture retained its emotional punch. For its day, it was a remarkable bit of directing. George Loan Tucker never equaled it. And in writing it, Frank L. Packard reached his peak, too.

The scenario and the director appointed to succeed them face a heavy responsibility.

LATEST GOSSIP

Effete Hollywood has a 12-link horseshoe club on the edge of its business section. . . Ruby Keeler is in town. Her train was two hours late and Jolson almost missed her when he went to a picture show to kill time. . . Lilyan Tashman never wears flowers with formal evening costumes. . . The Darryll Zanuck polo team will play five games in Santa Barbara. . . Ann Harding has bought one of those 16-cylindered jobs to climb that hill to her home. . . Wallace Beery and Robert Montgomery are going deer hunting—you know, the kind with the horns. . . Santa Barbara is the new week-end rendezvous of the film folk. . . Ruth Chatterton is there now, recuperating from an automobile smashup and from her last picture.

Ruth Chatterton

HIS STOCK RISES

With every air of confidence a Paramount official tells me that Irving Pichel is on his way to stardom. The former Civic and Little Theater actor not only gets "The Miracle Man" role, but will support Tallulah Bankhead in a modern version of "The Cheat." Strange how the old hits are coming back. Orginally, Fanny Ward and Sessue Hayakawa played in this film. The new version will not have an Oriental hero.

CHANGE FOR KAY

Warners will give Kay Francis a chance to change her type, just as they did William Powell when he came over from Paramount.

The suave Kay will drop a great deal of her sophistication in her first role on the new lot. This will be the American heroine of a German play. J. Grubb Alexander is using only the basic idea of the drama for his screen treatment.

Kay leaves Paramount in October.

Warner Has Dirigible On View

"Dirigible," which was "road-showed" in the Pitt a couple of months ago, opened an engagement of continuous performances in the Warner yesterday. This you recall, is Columbia's air drama, which co-features Ralph Graves and Jack Holt, with Fay Wray being the heroine.

In type the film follows the lines of those other Holt-Graves pictures, "Submarine" and "Flight," though it treats with a different subject. It concerns Navy airmen and their daring dashes to the South Pole.

The drama has exciting action and a romantic triangle. Graves is seen as a husband and airman who is more in love with "glory" and the plaudits of the crowd than he is with his wife. Miss Wray is seen as the wife he leaves behind him. Holt is the other man.

The picture won nice praise from the critics at the time of its Pitt premiere.

Lord and Lady Castleross (Doris Delavigne) are having it melted in London, and her new groom will be Sir Alfred Beit. . . The Ralph Bellamys (of "Front Page," the movie) are On the Verge. . . . It's a gel over at the Sir Percy Lawson-Johnstons (Alice Kenny). . . . Henry Lowe, of 67 Wall, supposedly in Hollywood on business, is actually in Reno telling it to a judge. . . . The Frieda (Metropera) Hempel-Jack Taylor romance has soured, as has the one-time grand palship of Eddie Cantor and George Jessel. . . . The Robert Emmett Keanes (Claire Whitney) are fading. . . . Chas. Ruffing, of the Yankee hurling staff, was secretly sealed last wk. . . . Lupe Velez's current heart is Winfield Sheehan, of Fox Films. . . . One of those movies of the late Starr Faithfull is now making the rounds. . . . The Graham Smiths are bless-eventing. . . . His Honor the Mayor of New York may show off for Germany with his physician, his "clock" keeping poor time.

The Courtney Burr-Norman-Bel Geddes show will be "Hamlet" with music! . . . E. Carroll examines all femme applicants for years. . . . Appendicitis marks bar 'em. . . . Add romances: Hal Phyffe, the hocus-pocus man, and Minna Gombell, the actress. . . . Chesterfield ciggies will shelve billboard advertising soon. . . . Heywood Broun is so serious about helping the unemployed that he has his own coin backing "Shoot the Works." . . . Wesley Ruggles, the moon pitcher director, and Arlene Judge are altar-bound. . . . Mae Marsh, yesterday's Love Interest, is now playing old mother roles. . . . It's a girl at the Theodore Stones. . . . Winifred Reeves, the writer, and her Canadian merchant husband reconciled in Reno, where both went to divorce each other. . . . If Wanda Stevenson, chorus girl, doesn't phone, write or return to her parents, the police will be notified.

Ziegfeld's neice, Edith Dinehart, who was divorced in Chi last wk., has a new honey considerably younger. . . . On Friday there were only four solvent building-firms in New York. . . . Ruth Grace, phormer "Phollies" phemme, who was secretly married two years ago, is secretly divorcing to middle-aisle it with a rich New Mexico polo pony breeder. . . . The Erlanger estate is so tied up it has no currency to produce plays. . . . H. G. Wells has almost completed his new book which will be a history of economics. . . . Two of the most important monthly mags, which everybody thinks are prospering, are losing fortunes. . . . Yolanda Lossee, who married a stranger six hours after meeting him, had it annualled last wk.

Perhaps Theodore Dreiser has a squawk at that! . . . Paramount not only may have spoiled his picture, but on a Park and 126th billboard they spell it "American TraDgedy". . . . The Boris (Arch Selwyn Offices) Kaplans are infanting. . . . Economists argue that, divorced from politics, there is about as much sense in trying to maintain a market for wheat as it is to encourage the manufacture of buggywhips. . . . N. Lans and Margaret Davis after a long parting, have Cried It Out. . . . The Childs chain is broadcasting the report that Dorothy Barton, of the Argonaut, who recently eloped with Duncan McMartin, Canadian money-lad, was a waitress for them in New Haven. . . . S. W. Strauss, on August 1, will grab what new spooty hotel now building, for payment default. . . . Whatever became of Lou Holtz?

Recommended to diversion seekers: "Speakeasy Girl," by B. Meredith, an exciting and sound murder novel. . . . "This Is the Mrs." from the forthcoming "Scandale". . . . La Etting's platter of "Without That Man" and the Boswell Sisters ranarying "I Surrender, Dear" for the Brunswick crew. . . . At least two-thirds of "Shoot the Works" at the Cohan. . . . The hordurvs at the Mansion. . . . The open-air bowling alleys next to the Calais Club. . . . That Guinan person at Woodmansten Inn. . . . And more thrilling than any gangster chin-ema, the 9 a. m. line-up at Police Headquarters—but if you are an outsider you now must get an okay from Edward Pierce Mulrooney.

Here's economy! Every building in the movie studios is designed so its exterior may be used for pictures. . . . Al Smith, Frank Walker and other Tammanyokels are backing E. Dowling's new flicker, "Honeymoon Lane." . . . Eileen Wensel will shelve the "Follies" for "Vanities". . . . Bill Leeds, via his yacht, is aiding E. Carrol to win them back. . . . The best line in "Man of Possession": "The softer a woman's skin, the harder her heart." . . . The scenery for a flop show now is worth $100 a set less than nothing—

Menke Cast Becoming Modern

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Capt. Menke's Golden Rod showboaters at Montrose are becoming filled with ambish. This week they are presenting a play less than 25 years old. They are too! Not much less, but a year or two anyway. It is "The Girl From Out Yonder," which served as a vehicle for a popular soubret just short of a quarter of a century ago.

All of this up-to-the-minute dash and go really alarmed us, and we were fully expecting the river troupers to be announced as rehearsing "Death Takes a Holiday" as the next production, but everything is all right.

Billy Florer came out with the reassuring assurance that next week's attraction would be "Rip Van Winkle," which, on second thought, may be just another name for "Death Takes a Holiday."

This Capt. Menke is just too full of surprises. Not satisfied with giving us a play written in the present century, he added to the full measure by introducing a coupla new vaudevillians to perform between the acts and a new actor who doubled in guitar strings. . . also between the acts. One of the new artists played the accordion, oh, so soulfully.

Not to be outdone, Vic Faust, the marvel of the Swiss bells, switched from "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms" to "Annie Laurie" for his crime specialty. So the folks wouldn't mistake him for an entire stranger, with much rouge around his eyes, spectacles, derby and all, he came through with his trade-mark "Listen to the Mockingbird," hammered out with consummate artistry, and no little expenditure of perspiration on the little wooden doo-hickey.

As stated previously, "Rip Van Winkle" next week.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

We had our Madame X's, "Madam Satan" and Madame This-and-that in the movies and now we are to have a new one. Madame Mousiarie. She will be a character in "Frontier," and will be played by Edna May Oliver, the Mrs. Tracy Wyatt of "Cimarron." The featured players of "Cimarron," Richard Dix and Irene Dunn, will be co-starred in "Frontier."

Small Timer, masking his entrance with the exit of the dancing ensemble, says too many persons embark upon the sea of matrimony with the idea of being captains instead of mates.

Clark and McCullough, one of whose funny are to be featured in a short filum called "A Melon Drama."

Small Timer says a man newly arrived from Scotland tried to sell him a gag the other day, but he refused it because he thought that was carrying a joke too far.

Hope Williams, from the stage, will make her screen debut in a Radio Pictures production, Penn's house. Exterior scenes will be made at Miss Williams' ranch in Wyoming.

Small Timer says crusty persons are always ready to toast others.

When Bert Lytell, of stage and screen, appears before the footlights in Patrick Kearney's new play, "Veiled Eyes," it will be in the capacity of actor-manager. His debut as a producer will be made in the part assigned to Leon Quartermaine in the production, that of the late David Belasco.

Small Timer says the reason he gets along so well with his wife is because when she tells him get along he does.

James Carney, hard-boiled gentleman of the screen, is said to have a yen to become a concert pianist.

MRS. PROPHET ASKS RETRIAL

PHILADELPHIA, July 28 (AP).—A petition for a new trial for Mrs. Clara Grace Prophet, convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder last November of her husband, was filed with the State Supreme Court yesterday.

Samuel Merriman, counsel for Mrs. Prophet, said the hearing on the petition will be held September 28 in Pittsburgh, the same day the appeal of Mrs. Prophet's brother, Harold E. Williams, is to be argued. Williams is under sentence to die in the electric chair for the slaying.

Prophet was killed in his home early last November 22. Williams admitted going into the house and beating his brother-in-law to death. Mrs. Prophet was convicted of having instigated the crime.

In a statement at the time of her arrest, Mrs. Prophet said she had agreed to a plan to give her brother $500 of her husband's $5,000 life insurance if he put him out of the way.

GAS PRICE CUTS HELP AUTOISTS

Motorists in Allegheny County saved an average of $7.19 each due to reductions in gasoline prices since January 1, according to the Pittsburgh Motor Club. Prices have been reduced four cents a gallon in the last five months. Retail prices of 15 cents per gallon for motor gas and 18 cents for anti-knock gas, both including a three-cent tax, are the lowest since 1924 and are exactly one-half the figures for 1929, the peak year.

Each motorist consumes an average of 492 gallons a year or 1.34 gallons a day, the report shows. An approximate total saving of $13,042,000 for Pennsylvania motorists has been brought by reductions in the last five months, according to the report.

TRAFFIC RULES RECEIVE TEST

Sixty-day trial periods for new traffic regulations and repeal of other regulations were in force today following recommendations to Council by Public Safety Director James M. Clark.

The new regulations are:

No left turn from south on Smithfield street to west on Seventh avenue.

One-way eastbound traffic on East Lacock street from Federal street to Anderson street.

Elimination of existing "no parking" regulations on the north side of General Robinson street and on the south side of East Lacock street, between Federal and Anderson streets.

Burglar Scorns $300 Violin for New $10 Hat

When Raymond D. Evans, assistant United States attorney, returned to his home, 5811 Elgin avenue, last night from making a campaign speech in behalf of his candidacy for Common Pleas Court Judge, he found the place ransacked, he reported today. A thief had passed up a $300 violin and taken Evans' new $10 hat. Nothing else was missing. The family is ... on vacation.

KLINE SEES BIDS ON FOOD OPENED

For the first time since the making public last February of the letter from John D. Houston of the James W. Houston Company that precipitated the probe into the Department of Supplies, Mayor Charles H. Kline today presided at the opening of bids for groceries and meats at Mayview.

There were 16 bidders on groceries and eight on meats.

The James W. Houston Company was among the bidders and when the name was read the Mayor smiled at John Lang, chief clerk, who acted in the absence of Director W. R. Dunlap, who is vacationing. A white patch over his right temple gave visible evidence of the Mayor's boil.

The bids are being tabulated and the awards will be made in a few days.

126 BAIL CASES AWAIT ACTION THURSDAY

Guilty Pleas Are Possible Under Court Innovation; Jail Terms Shortened

A total of 126 cases already await action by the Allegheny County grand jury when it convenes Thursday to consider cases against prisoners arrested since the jury recessed on June 28, who have been held in jail unable to get bail.

Some of these cases are expected to be ignored by the grand jury, and the prisoners will be discharged at once, instead of having to lie in jail until the September grand jury gets down to work.

Prisoners who are indicted can, if they wish, enter pleas of guilty at once, and, if sentenced to prison, begin serving their terms at once, instead of having to lie in jail until the September term of court gets under way.

Formerly all prisoners taken in July and August had no recourse but to stay in jail, if they could not get bail, until fall. The innovation of having the grand jury recalled the middle of the summer is being tried out for the first time this year.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park said only jail cases are to be taken up by the jury. Prisoners who have been released on bail will not be disposed of until the September term, as formerly.

It is expected by Park that the Grand Jury will be able to hear all of the cases on one day, but if necessary they will sit again on Friday. Judge James H. Gray will preside in Criminal Court while the Grand Jury is in session.

No murder cases are to come before the Grand Jury, and the entire list of 126 cases are principally of a trivial nature. Assault and battery and felonious assault and battery make up about one-third of the list. There is one robbery case, five of burglary and about 20 of larceny. There are 15 holding what is termed plea day morality cases, the same number charging false pretense and the others are for a variety of misdemeanors, including one of mayhem, in which a man is charged with biting off a girl's nose.

Many persons lodged in jail during July have been taking advantage of the court and District Attorney's offer to let them plead guilty on information, instead of waiting the Grand Jury's indictment. A number of minor offenders were thus disposed of yesterday by Judge Gray, who each Monday and Thursday has been holding what is termed plea day.

CAMPAIGN PLAN FOR PRIMARY KEPT SECRET

Conference Held Indication Pair Will Join to Fight Armstrong-Coyne Ticket

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern and State Senator William D. Mansfield conferred for one and one-half hours yesterday in the Registration Commission office, and although neither would admit it, it was generally believed they discussed running together for County Commissioner as heads of an "independent" slate.

Many observers took yesterday's meeting as a sure indication that McGovern and Mansfield soon will announce their joint candidacies and that shortly thereafter the Regular Republican organization will announce its ticket to be headed by County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and State Senator Coyne as running mates for the two majority county commissioners.

David L. Lawrence, Eighth Ward Democratic County chairman, and T. A. Dougherty, of Sharpsburg, probably will be Democratic candidates for County Commissioner. Harry Lutz, secretary, today took out petitions to place their names upon the Democratic ballot at the September primary.

"Independent" followers believe McGovern would like to have Deputy Attorney General Ralph H. Smith run for district attorney.

Former State Senator M. G. Lessig has been represented at the "independent" caucus and it seems probable that at least two of his friends, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and Clerk of Courts Samuel J. Topley, will be on the McGovern ticket.

Sixty-eight Negro clergymen, attending the Pittsburgh Baptist Ministers' Conference yesterday in Macedonia Baptist Church, Bedford avenue and Shaffer street, indorsed Mansfield for commissioner. The Rev. A. M. Patterson presided.

John E. Loibl today filed his petition as a Republican candidate for Council. He was formerly head of the Department of Property and Supplies during the administration of Mayor W. A. Magee.

Alderman Samuels Seeks Re Election

Soost, Alderdice File for Council

William J. Soost, Traffic Court magistrate and Republican city chairman, and Councilman R. J. Alderdice today filed petitions to have their names printed on the Republican ballot for Council at the September primaries. Both are reported to have the backing of the Kline administration. Alderdice is seeking re-election. Soost is groomed for one of the seats now held by anti-Kline councilmen.

COUNCIL TO ACT ON ZOO FUND

Relief for disease-ridden animals at the Highland Park Zoo appeared today, with Council scheduled to act on a $100,000 appropriation.

Councilman Clifford B. Connelley yesterday introduced the legislation following a number of visits to the zoo with Councilman John M. Phillips and Public Works Director Edward G. Lang.

Among improvements planned according to Lang is a new water line to replace the present 4-inch main that has been in use for more than 40 years. This new line would create greater pressure and insure an adequate supply for the animals and birds.

Other recommendations are:

Erection of bear pits on a natural rock formation site at the rear of the zoo.

Construction of a concrete pool for the elephants.

New aviary in the open for the hundreds of birds.

Disposal of some of the less interesting specimens to create more room for those in which the public is interested.

Exit from Chile Was Joy Tour for President

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

President Ibanez of Chile left on a pleasure trip.

It was a pleasure to escape the mob.

Senor Ibanez fled in an ambulance. The Chileans hope he comes back the same way.

It indicates that the South American referendum and recall is still far above peace strength.

None of our southern sister republics are represented in the Paris, London and Berlin debt conferences.

They're right. When a man owes more than he can pay he is silly to talk about it.

Just keep your mouth shut. And try to borrow more.

The reason Germany is in a tough fix right now is that the diplomats are doing everything they can to save her.

In the meantime Raskob says the Democratic party must have a candidate to fit the plank. It can be either a man or a shad.

The Democratic nominee must be so dripping wet that there's seaweed in his hip pockets and his tonsils rise and fall with the tide.

Looks like our old pal Al Smith is in for another hay ride.

DREW OPPOSED ON 2 TICKETS

HARRISBURG, July 28 (INS).—Two opponents will contest the nomination to the State Supreme Court in the September primary with Judge James B. Drew, of Pittsburgh, now on the Superior Court bench and named by Gov. Gifford Pinchot to the high court.

Judge Drew filed Republican and Democratic nominating papers for Supreme Court post and opposing him in his party contest will be Judge Albert D. MacDade, of Chester, and Graham C. Woodward, of Philadelphia. His Democratic opponents will be Judge Henry C. Niles, of York, Democratic nominee last year, and Charles F. Uhl, of Somerset County.

Policeman Balks Delivery of Rum

Well, they was the female kin folks of Harry Carr, the best writer on the coast. He wrote an awful nice piece sympathizing with the bandits. Yours, WILL.

MINERS MOVE INTO TENTS

Evicted by the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation at Coverdale from their homes yesterday approximately 50 women and children comprising the families of 11 striking miners looked for shelter in a tent city that is hastily being raised on a field adjoining the mine. Seven more families were expected to be evicted from their homes today.

The evicted miners intend to continue their defiance against mine operators from their tents, according to the statements of various strikers. They are supporters of the National Miners' Union.

Suspect Held in Wildcat Radio Operation

Charged with the illegal operation of radio broadcast station WGM at Jeannette, Lee Elton Spencer, of that place, today was under $2,500 bond awaiting trial in Federal Court.

Spencer was held following a hearing yesterday before the United States Commissioner. Federal Radio Commission inspectors testified a field test near Paris, W. Va., July 15 brought the interception of advertising messages from WGM. Spencer is charged with operating a station without a permit, broadcasting without an operator's license, and with interference with licensed stations.

Spencer had been previously indicted by a Federal grand jury on the same charges and was awaiting trial at the time of his second arrest.

Thugs Menace Girl Clerk In Bakery Holdup

Two bandits held up the Tisherman Brothers' bakery at 2201 Murray avenue and obtained an undetermined amount of money last night. The pair pointed revolvers at Grace Barth, of 2353 Sherbrook street, a clerk, and ordered her to remain quiet while they looted the cash registers.

City detectives today had found no trace of the three bandits who held up and robbed Fred Marberg, 20, messenger for the Washington Trust Company at Sampson and Monterey streets, late yesterday.

After seizing Marberg's bag which contained $338.65 in cash and more than $300 worth of checks, the bandits escaped in an automobile.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR FIRE VICTIMS

15 Friends and Nuns Attend Requiem Mass for Aged Woman; Others Buried

The first of the funerals for those who died in the Little Sisters of the Poor Home for the Aged fire were held today.

One was that of Mary McCarthy, 68. It was held in Sacred Heart Church with the Rev. Father Victor J. Kennedy singing a requiem high mass.

Fifteen of the aged woman's friends and sister nuns from the home attended and then went to Calvary Cemetery for the burial.

REQUIEM MASS

In St. Wilburga's Catholic Church a requiem high mass was sung for Mary Jacobs, 68, whose body had been claimed by her sister, Clara, and her three brothers, Lawrence, Philip and Frank Jacobs.

Bridget Shea, 78, was buried following a mass for the dead at St. John's Church after her body was claimed by friends.

The funeral of Cornelius F. Moore was held from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Josephine Stewart, 1114 Sunday street, following a mass in St. Andrew's Church, Beaver avenue.

CLAIMED BY FRIENDS

Mary McCarthy, her body claimed by friends, was buried following a mass at Sacred Heart Church, East End.

A mass was also sung for Catherine Garraner in St. Lawrence's Church, where many of the injured found refuge until they could be transferred to hospitals.

Mary Walden, claimed by her son, Dennis, of 2 Paxton place, was buried following a requiem high mass in St. John the Baptist Church.

Catherine McGuire, survived by a son, Harry J. McGuire, and a brother, James Mount, of Walla Walla, Wash., was buried following a requiem high mass at St. Augustine's Church.

Mary Shoemaker, 45, will be buried tomorrow following a requiem high mass to be sung in St. Joseph's Catholic Church at 8:30 a. m. Interment will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Widow of Ex-Millionaire Will Be Buried Tomorrow

Tomorrow morning a requiem high mass will be sung for Mrs. Pauline Lutz, 80, the forty-second of the home's inmates to die from injuries received in the fire.

For 12 years after the death of her husband, Anton, once a millionaire Pittsburgh brewer, Mrs. Lutz lived at the home.

Once widely known for her charities, Mrs. Lutz and her husband faced poverty together 20 years ago. That was after he had lost the D. Lutz & Son brewery on Spring Garden avenue. When he died, Mrs. Lutz went to the Little Sisters Home, where she had been since.

Mass will be sung at St. Mary's Church, which she once attended, and the burial will be in the Lutz family lot in St. Mary's Cemetery, with William Pappert, a North Side funeral director, who knew Mrs. Lutz for 50 years, in charge.

DEVICE FIXES INTENSITY OF LIGHT

Westinghouse Engineer Perfects Instrument That May Utilize Sun's Power

Dr. E. D. Wilson, of the Westinghouse Research Laboratories, Forest Hills, has produced an instrument that definitely measures the intensity of light and gives a reading on a calibrated dial, it was announced.

The new device, not yet commercial, uses no power and is regarded by authorities as a possible means of developing power from the sun or daylight.

The entire outfit is so compact that it can be covered by the palm of a hand.

The center of the instrument contains a disc of oxide copper connected with a meter. Built into the meter as a self-contained unit, the device would serve for a direct indicator of light intensity, it was said. A successful method to utilize the powerful rays of the sun by converting them into electrical engineering energy has been the goal of engineers for a generation.

Dr. Wilson

The instrument would be an infallible monitor of illumination levels in the movie or portrait studios, while in schools and other public buildings or in factories rapid check could be made of the adequacy of lighting conditions by means of the instrument, it is said.

Organist's Tunes Rile Janitor, Two Jailed

CHICAGO, July 28.—(AP.)—Music doesn't always have charms.

In this particular instance the music was being played by John Csinoss in a church in which he is the regular organist.

Alex Kovez, janitor at the church, who police said let the organist in the church in the morning to practice, described the music as "terrible" and attempted to put the player out in the afternoon. In the struggle a chair was broken over the organist's head. He was taken to a hospital and later to jail.

The police, who professed to know nothing about the kind of music being played, locked the janitor up too.

MORGUE DEAD LISTED

Out of the chaos of horror and tragedy that marked Friday night's fire in the Little Sisters of the Poor Home for the Aged, nun attendants and workers in the offices of the County Morgue today finally brought a semblance of order to the list of dead.

They finished shortly before noon, complete, though in several cases tentative, identification of the 42 bodies, some of them fire scarred beyond any recognition.

Today the seven bodies heretofore unidentified were listed as Joseph DeKovis, Henry Gilheiger, Daniel O'Shea, Hugh McCoy, Anna Carroll, Bridget Cloonan and Mary Henry.

Discovery that Mrs. Josephine Roller and Anna Conning were safe, one in a private home, the other in a hospital, they said, eliminated the only other possibilities.

EXPERT TO SCAN DISPOSAL OF GARBAGE

Chicago Man Due Here Today For Inspection of Plants; Will Appear Before Council

Samuel A. Greeley, of Chicago, expert on garbage disposal, was expected to arrive today to study methods being used by the American Reduction Company in handling Pittsburgh's garbage and rubbish.

Greeley in New York last week testified in the litigation regarding the dumping of New York City's garbage at sea. He has studied the garbage problem in many of the leading cities.

He is scheduled to inspect the plants of the Allegheny Garbage Company this afternoon and to appear before City Council tomorrow. The offer of the Modern Service Company to build incinerators and save the city money in garbage disposal will be studied.

"It so happens I don't smoke..."

BUT I've noticed recently that more of my girl friends are smoking CHESTERFIELD, and I asked why.

"One of them said that CHESTERFIELDS really are milder and taste better—that there is nothing strong or sharp or bitter about them.

"Another one spoke up and said that she too liked the taste of CHESTERFIELDS; but that she was especially pleased with the package—so neat and attractive. Chesterfields—she added—are made right—properly filled—and burn evenly; and she thought possibly they were using a better cigarette paper.

"Still another one agreed with all we'd said. She'd been smoking CHESTERFIELDS for a long, long time, and had always liked them; but she also liked the way they were advertised. The advertising seemed to her to be the truth and the whole truth—it wasn't always knocking somebody or something!"

BABY BEAUTY SHOW STIRS DISTRICT

Contest to Be Feature Of Picnic at Kennywood; Entries Already Made

Next Tuesday is the big day for pretty little babies. They will all be out at Kennywood Park — hundreds of them. They're entered in the annual Sun-Telegraph-Kroger Stores baby beauty contest in which silver cups and baby medals will be awarded the winners.

From the number of entries already received it would seem that this will be the contest of all contests for beautiful children. If you have one or two or three in your home don't fail to enter them in this unique event. Several sets of twins and triplets have already been nominated for the special prizes in their classes.

The baby beauty contest will be the outstanding feature of a big series of events arranged for the annual Kroger Stores' picnic. It is expected that the attendance at this festive affair will reach 50,000 or more.

Entry blanks are still available and they cost you nothing. Go to your nearest Kroger store and enter your baby today. There will be three classes for boys and girls, six classes in all, from infants up to 5 years of age. Watch the Sun-Telegraph for additional details.

Among those entered are:

Carolyn, Evelyn and Marilyn, triplet girls, born November 14, 1930, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Best, 203 McWhinney avenue, Homestead Park.

Betty and Grace, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Munn, 215 Meredith street, Carrick.

Francis, John and Sofia, 4 years, 2 years and 5 months old, respectively, children of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence G. Scnifano, 2120 Hazeldell street, Carrick.

David J., son of Mr. and Mrs. David J. Lloyd, Jr., 715 Hawkins avenue, North Braddock.

Bobby and Billy, sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rush Dewall, 513 Second street, Pitcairn.

Free buttermilk and pretzels, as well as baskets of canned goods will be on the list, according to Clinton Schmidt, chairman of the committee in charge. Tampa the radio magician, will read free horoscopes, and give away a live baby, he says.

Schmidt also said that valuable prizes will feature a pajama parade, a dance contest and a mush-ball game between the North Side and South Side grocers.

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE SUGAR TO SWEETEN DRINKS

How could we go through summer without home-made drinks sweetened to taste with sugar and chilled with ice?

Nothing can take the place of sugar in sweetening drinks. And housewives all over the country look upon refined cane sugar as the standard. Use it for iced tea, coffee and chocolate, milk shakes, lemonade and fruit punches. Refresh yourself with a sweetened drink. The Sugar Institute.

The Loud Speaker By Louis Reid

NEW YORK, July 28.—John McCormack is the latest catch in the Columbia net. Fine scramble of the radio fisher folk today trying to land the big fish of the entertainment seas. McCormack would seem to be Paley's answer to Aylesworth's recent grab of Post and Gatty and the new Waldorf.

McCormack is sometimes referred to as the "Toscanini of Singers." Surprising to find press agents so original. Well, we have yet to read of Toscanini as the "McCormack of Maestros." Best known song in the senor's repertory is "I Hear You Calling Me," with "Mother Machree" a close second. There actually is a program called "Radio's Greatest Lover." And no crooner signified. Lonely women hastening to know find the program means the world's most cherished love songs.

Paris night life is agitating the air synthetically. The real thing ought to be given us if for nothing else than to show if French gals are still singing about "nine eyes of mam'selles." Captains of industry are also becoming known as composers of ambitious pieces. First there was William H. Woodin. Now comes Charles Madiuro, sugar shotgun steamship line poohbah. Ben Bernie disclosed more and more a nice gift of wisecracking. Just as Will Rogers discarded his lariat, Bernie may be called upon some day soon in Broadway revue to lay aside his fiddle. We have now heard opera all the way from Vienna. A good band playing the Strauss waltzes would be much more enjoyable. One of the best cures for the heebie-jeebies is a Strauss waltz.

"I love Louisa" will probably be the next big song hit on the radio. Broadcasters are again celebrating Stephen Foster's birthday. It's only right they should. Foster is their first in musical emergency. Radio gets them all in time, even Creatore, even Francis X. Bushman. And another newcomer to the air is a former minstrel basso called "Singin' Sam." Sounds more like a song than a singer.

The most regularly employed tenors in radio are those who merely whisper over the microphones. About once in six months the old waltz hit "Roses of Picardy" is dusted off by the broadcasters. Dennis King varies his warblings with recitals of poetry. He is the first network reciter since Edgar Guest. King's manner on the air is rollicking. Guest's melancholy.

Hollywood Puts Trademark On All Who Go There—Fay King

By FAY KING

Going Hollywood—that's to most of us that a successful screen star is completely surrounded by sunken bath tubs, a swimming pool, tennis courts, golf links, a fleet of high-powered imported cars and a private yacht.

But, at most, this would mean that comparatively few can ever afford to go Hollywood, whereas it seems to me that the great majority who enter the portals of Picture City go Hollywood—the tourist as well as the potential star.

The gilded luxury is the last stage—the "Hollywood knee" is the first.

You've noticed it—that artistic dip that is so evident in every picture of a movie star or actress, whether it is a snapshot or a studio study—the trademark of Hollywood.

Eating Ice Cream

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. What is the correct way to eat a dish of ice cream? Should it be spooned away from one, as one would spoon soup?

2. In resting a knife on the plate should one place it so that the sharp edge faces toward the center of the plate?

D. S.

1. No, the spoon with which we eat ice cream is drawn toward us. And we eat only a small mouthful of the ice cream at a time. That is, take with the spoon only that portion. To my mind there is nothing more unattractive than a person can do when eating than to take a large portion of ice cream on the spoon at a time and then, after a small portion of this has been eaten from the spoon, draw the remaining portion out of the mouth on the spoon, again putting the spoon in the mouth to eat the rest of the ice cream.

2. Yes.

What $16,000 buys in The American Weekly

A full page in color more than twice the size of any other magazine page in the world . . . 5,500,000 families at a cost of less than ½ cent per family . . . The attention of the entire family instead of a single buying factor.

All merchandise must be sold twice. It must be sold first to the retailer, who in turn must sell it to the consumer.

Advertising can help in both instances. It can influence the retailer to stock the merchandise and it can create the consumer demand necessary to move that merchandise from the dealer's shelf.

The head of an advertising agency which serves a manufacturer of national reputation recently referred to The American Weekly as "the action magazine."

When asked what he meant by this statement he replied that he regards magazines generally as long-pull media but that The American Weekly not only possesses the long life and long-pull effectiveness of other magazines but in addition stands without rival in bringing about immediate sales.

In times of great prosperity manufacturers may be willing to wait years to build prestige and create sales for the future.

But in times like these, when sales are not easy to make, most manufacturers do not want to wait three to five years to make their sales and cash their profits. They want quick turnover and the way to quick turnover is to move merchandise quickly from the dealer's shelf into the hands of the consumer.

The outstanding record of merchandising and advertising successes piled up by The American Weekly over a period of years cannot be matched by any other magazine in the national field.

With its 5,500,000 circulation—with its great page more than twice the size of any other magazine—with its blanket coverage of the richest buying areas of the nation, this action magazine offers a national advertising and irresistible selling force which cannot be duplicated by any other single publication.

And in addition The American Weekly does the biggest job at the LOWEST COST.

To give some idea of the coverage of this mighty magazine, let us analyze its circulation.

The American Weekly concentrates and dominates in 578 of America's 997 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over. (1930 U. S. census figures.)

In each of 152 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 108 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 146 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 172 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 1,700,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy The American Weekly.

Where can you spend your advertising dollar more effectively?

Cock-A-Doodle-Doo

The American Weekly advertising revenue and linage for the first six months of 1931 was the greatest for any six months' period in its history. The month of July was the greatest July in volume of advertising linage and revenue, and the July 12 issue was the greatest individual issue in volume of advertising linage and revenue which The American Weekly has ever published.

Poor Association Summer Home On River

One of Pittsburgh's most charitable organizations is the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor. The association has its fresh air home on the Allegheny River this summer, where hundreds of children are taken every two weeks to enjoy a real vacation in the out-of-doors.

H. W. Shepard, secretary of the association, recently made a tour of inspection of the property. Many improvements have added to the attractiveness of the camp.

There the tots have a modern swimming pool in which a new supply of water is emptied each hour. The entire property covers 2½ acres.

Miss Sara Hastings is matron of the home and Miss Helen Cashdollar is in charge of recreation. There is the most up-to-date apparatus for the physical development of the children installed and the children are given a health diet.

Girl Scouts Make Camp Livable in Five Days

A livable camp made in five days and having all of the conveniences dear to the heart of the seasoned camper, is the good record of the first troop of girls to try real pioneering this summer at the national Girl Scout camp, Camp Andree at Briarcliff Manor, New York.

Capt. Elizabeth Sampson and her own troop from Mt. Vernon, N. Y., moved into Hiawatha, the pioneer encampment at Andree on the first day of July. On the fifth day they had finished and moved into a complete encampment of their own. On the next they were invitation to a housewarming at which the gloves and utilities of the camp were displayed.

Ponchos supported on poles formed the tents and supplied adequate protection for the beds which, made on the ground, also had outer coverings of ponchos. Tables were made of poles lashed together so securely as to be satisfactory as the best enamel models. The substantial fireplace was built of rocks. There were gadgets to hold mirrors in place, to support tooth glasses and wash basins and to supply towel racks. Partitions afforded privacy to the dressing rooms. A grease pit for dishwater, an incinerator for refuse and a suitable drain made the camp safe as far as sanitation was concerned.

A few scratches and a few slightly cut fingers are the only damages suffered by the group.

BLUE CAPTURES SARTORIAL HONORS AT RACING EVENT

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun Telegraph.

PARIS, July 28.—The winning colors at an important racing event do not always refer to the victorious jockey. Not from a sartorial viewpoint anyway. For it is at these smart outdoor events, that tabs are always kept on the most popular styles and hues. And so it must be related that, at the recent meet at Chantilly, blue won by several lengths from all other competitors. The smartest women wore blue, blue with white or blue with a contrasting shade of blue. Of course there was black with white, some brown with white as well as several other colors. But to a casual observer, the scene was a sea of blue. Several women wore blue velvet hats with their outfits, others who wore white and blue prints or blue velvet coats with white frocks, also wore blue hats, an undeniably smart and becoming milliners mode. We are fast learning to dispense with the dark hat as a necessary part of the costume, all of which makes for more originality and charm.

WE ARE SENDING you sketches of two of the smartest and most representative hats worn at Chantilly. The large brimmed hat was the choice of the Baroness Edouard de Rothschild who wore Vionnet's famous hand-worked all-over pin-tucked frock in pale blue georgette. The hat is of sapphire blue velvet and the brim dips at the right side where it is wider and has a pleated look. The white suede gloves had several diamond bracelets clasped over them and at the side of the softly draped neckline was a magnificent sapphire set in diamonds to form a clip and further accentuate the blue note.

THEN THERE WAS the smart small "amazon" hat. The model sketched is of fine black pressed straw with a black bird posed high at one side of the crown. The brim is rolled up slightly at each side with a decided peak at the front over the right eye. Worn with a black and white outfit [illegible]

GRASSHOPPERS DEFY SCIENCE

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 28 — (AP) — Science, apparently with its back to the wall, was fighting today to stem the tide of hordes of creeping, hopping and flying grasshoppers which are playing havoc with the crops of Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, North and South Dakota.

At Des Moines, the Iowa capital, plans were being made for a meeting of entomologists and agricultural leaders to devise means of combating the hordes of insects which have moved relentlessly across the Missouri River eastward. At the same time Iowa state officials sought an appropriation of $50,000 to fight the plague.

DONIE MAY PILOT TIGERS NEXT YEAR

IN SPITE OF denials, public criticism by Owner Charles A. Comiskey can only mean that Manager Donie Bush is to leave the Chicago White Sox at the end of the season, if not earlier, to be supplanted probably by Urban Faber, veteran pitcher. And when that happens, according to the latest whisperings in baseball circles, the Detroit club, for which he long starred as a shortstop, may seek Bush as manager for next year to succeed Bucky Harris. Friends of Bush, holding him blameless for the poor showing of the White Sox, contend that player injuries have put the former Pirate skipper under a severe handicap.

Donie Bush

There is no club in existence so strong as not to feel the loss of a pitcher capable of winning 22 games in a season. To a second division team such a pitcher may spell the difference between fifth or sixth place and the cellar. That's what Bush lost when Ted Lyons went down with an arm injury. Last year Lyons won 22 games, pitched in 42 and completed 29. This season he has won only two contests, pitched in only 12 and completed only three.

ANOTHER AILING FLINGER. Alphonse Thomas, has hurled only six complete games, and Urban Faber has been able to go the distance only twice. This has taxed the remainder of the small staff to such an extent that Pat Caraway has been forced to work in no fewer than 31 games to date, falling off so greatly in effectiveness in consequence that he has lost 16 games, leading both leagues in slab defeats.

And the handicap has not been confined to the pitching department. The club's star player, Carl Reynolds, one of the best in the country, has missed 18 full games through illness or injury and has been available only as a pinchhitter in many others. He is hitting 35 points below his average of 1930. Smead Jolley has been out almost the entire time with a broken leg, and the club has frequently been crippled elsewhere. Donie's supporters hold that no manager could win under such conditions.

BUT FOR ONE of the queer turns of the baseball fates, Bush would now be the manager of a strong first-division club in the American League, instead of directing the lowly White Sox. A matter of only 24 hours kept him from becoming pilot of the New York Yankees.

Following the fatal illness of Miller Huggins, Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, authorized Ed Barrow to get in touch with Bush and offer him the managership of the Yankees. But Donie had signed with the Sox one day earlier and could not accept.

THREE TIMES THE Pirates won four games in succession, but this is their first success in winning as many as five in a row. In capturing 11 of their last 14 games since they started their drive two weeks ago today, the Bucs have outstepped every other club in the National League. During the same period the Cardinals won nine and lost four, the Cubs won eight and lost six, the Reds won seven and lost seven, the Robins won seven and lost nine, the Braves won five and lost seven, the Giants won five and lost nine, and the Phillies won three and lost 10.*

Pie Traynor

BRILLIANT WORK ON the part of Pie Traynor is one of the main factors in the Pirate uplift. The Corsair captain was not himself during the first part of the campaign, particularly on the offensive, but now he's going like a prairie fire.

Traynor's batting average is steadily rising, he leads the National League in triples, is tied with Al Simmons for the leadership of both loops in drives of that length, and has been socking the ball to all corners of Forbes Field at such opportune moments that several recent victories may be attributed directly to his individual hitting. Besides he is running bases in his best form of the year and is once more killing hits around the hot corner in the style that long ago established him as the king of present-day third sackers.

THE PIRATES HAVE finally pulled up to even terms with their opponents on the home grounds for the season after a poor start. Yesterday's victory made it fifty-fifty on the Oakland lot for the year —21 games won and the same number lost, with one tie on the side.

On the road, the Ensmen still have a balance of six games on the wrong side of the book. They have lost 27 games abroad against 21 wins. In the East they have won 10 and lost 15, and in the West they have won 11 and lost 12.

BILL TILDEN is looking forward to the day when he can again meet Henri Cochet, tennis ace of France, who beat him three times in four meetings in Davis Cup competition. Tilden considers a resumption of hostilities possible because he thinks that Cochet will turn professional at no distant date. "Yes, I believe that Cochet soon will turn pro, and when he does I want to meet him and prove that I can defeat him," Bill declares.

JOHNNY VERGEZ, third baseman of the Giants, was not compelled to wait until next year to get the salary boost due him for making good in a much bigger way than was anticipated when he

PUBLIC PARKS PLAY GETS UNDER WAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Clear skies and perfect tennis temperature favored the Steel City municipal racquet hosts yesterday as embattled racqueters swung torridly into action in opening-round tussles of the second annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pittsburgh public parks net championships on the clay courts of Schenley, Frick, Highland, Olympia, Riverview and West parks. Spurred by ambition for honors of victory and by keen desire to land a trip as the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph guest to the national public parks championships at Detroit next month, contestants turned out in force on all six lots and fought gallantly for the triumphs that land them, notch by notch, closer to individual park and interpark trophy awards.

With Committeemen Famariss, Smeaton, O'Loughlin, Creighton, Olko and Beilstein on deck early to keep matters moving throughout afternoon and evening, events moved with neatness and dispatch so that ere darkness put quietus on hostilities 45 jousts had been actually completed and three more affairs had been settled by the default route, two upon word from entrants that they would be unable to compete and the third by ruling of the tournament referee in the case of Ralph Sniveley, Olympia entry, who was ruled ineligible because of affiliation with the Rockwood Tennis Club.

The milling thus shapes up in excellent fashion and, barring siege of bad weather, preliminary eliminations in the half-dozen park centers will be wound up easily by Saturday, survivors thus being certain of several days of grace for practice before inauguration of interpark titular play in men's and women's singles on the EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE CAUSE OF IT ALL—The spark that started the greatest war in history was kindled by a 19-year-old schoolboy. On June 28, 1914, Gavrilo Princip assassinated Franz Ferdinand, the heir to the Austrian throne. To avenge the murder Austria declared war upon Serbia on July 24, 1914, and, only a few days later, most of the civilized world was embroiled. The youthful assassin never learned the results of his act, as the Austrian authorities kept him in the strictest seclusion and in ignorance of world events. He died about two months before the conclusion of the war, and hence never learned the outcome of the great conflict. DIKKI DIKKI, THE DWARF KING—Dikki Dikki is the ruler of one of the pygmy tribes in the interior of Mindanao, Philippines. His puny stature is made even more remarkable by his extraordinary voraciousness. This midget king can eat more at a single sitting than two normal white men who are three times his size.

The Pirates seem to be the best team in the National League in the present torrid period. This afternoon they will make an attempt to record their sixth sequential victory, they having achieved their season's best run yesterday as they subdued the Giants, 8 to 6. Ervin Brame and Carl Hubbell are slated to fight it out on Fogarty Knoll today.

The Freebooters, however, may have to go into the second fight without the services of Howdy Grosskloss. The collegiate phenom had to leave yesterday's scrap with a lame throwing arm. Grosskloss injured himself as he tried to make a homer in the series with the Robins. He slid into Val Picinich with much force, the im-

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Of course, second place is about as important as the other U. S. Senator from Idaho, but that race for it in the National League is a pip.

The Cubs, Giants and Robins have been going nip and tuck for two weeks. Of course, while they were nipping and tucking, the Cardinals were zipping, and if the World Series doesn't open Nick Altrock west of the Mississippi River I will eat my shirt with a salad fork.

But you got to give the Cubs, Giants and Robins credit for making it a fight in weather so hot they could be pardoned for taking batting practice with palm leaf fans.

MILDRED "BABE" DIDRIKSON

Mildred Didrikson

FIRST WHILE RESIDING in Beaumont, Miss Didrikson learned to ride horseback. Next she decided she could get some fun out of basketball, and from that she branched into swimming, tennis, golf, baseball and even football and boxing. She played quarterback on a boys' football team, pitched, played third base and shortstop on a boys' baseball team and batted .800 in a girls' twilight league, getting 12 hits in 13 times at bat at one stretch. Mildred is a good tennis player, too, and she shoots around 90 in golf. She has a trunkful of swimming and diving medals, holds indoor skating speed records for Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, has bowled as high as 265 in tenpins and averaged 186 with a 16 pound two-finger ball. She was voted the outstanding individual star in the 1931 national A. A. U. woman's basketball championship tournament in which she shot the goal that won the title for her team, and besides the three track and field events in which she won championships Saturday, she features in the sprints, high jump, javelin throw and eight pound shotput. SUGAR SUCCESS AROUSES NEW INTEREST

Chadbourne Plan Raises Issues of Valorization Recent Discussion

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, July 27

Rukeyser

While it is admitted that the business outlook continues uncertain the point is made that the leading industrial organizations are prepared for a turn and will show to good advantage once conditions have improved. Because of the necessity of getting costs lower the operating managements of many concerns have adopted economies which will permit them to show a larger proportion of gross earnings saved for net income when they are again working at a fair rate. In addition the increased efficiency of the workers will affect results favorably.

The street is satisfied that Steel is destined to be returned to a $5 basis this afternoon. What it seeks to determine now is where the stock should be expected to sell under changed conditions. At current prices and on the present dividend steel is moving to offer a yield of 7.8 per cent. Reduction to a $5 dividend basis would slash the yield to 5.6 per cent on the present price. In the last depression period, 1920-22, Steel ranged as low as 70½, as a $5 dividend payer to yield 7.1 per cent. In those years common dividend requirements were about half covered. Allowing for the 40 per cent stock dividend paid in 1927 a $5 dividend today would be equivalent to a $7 dividend on the 1921 common capitalization.

Installment buying, excessive recourse to which during the boom period is blamed in part for our present swing to extremes in the other direction, must be reckoned as a normal means of financing purchases judging by the findings of the National Association of Finance Companies. This organization reports that a survey shows the ratio of installment purchases to total sales of automobiles, furniture, jewelry, clothing and electrical appliances has held substantially the same during the depression as it was during the preceding high wave of prosperity.

A substantially firmer grip on expenditures contributed to the ability of the Studebaker Corporation to make a better showing in the second quarter this year than in the corresponding period last year. Analysis shows that general expenses represented only about 8.5 per cent of the volume of net sales reported, whereas in the second quarter last year such expenses absorbed roughly 90 per cent of net sales. The company had $5,000,000 bank loans at the beginning of the year, but as of June 30 last this floating indebtedness had been extinguished. In consequence the ratio of current assets to current liabilities at the beginning of this month was 5.68 to 1 compared with 2.84 to 1 on December 31 last. Net working capital increased to $21,484,975 from $15,478,642.

PRICES HELD TOO LOW

Numerous economists believe that deflation has already gone too far and that commodity prices are too low. John Maynard Keynes, British economist, in a series of lectures here recently emphasized his belief that a rise in commodity prices would be a prelude to a return of real prosperity. As a program he insisted that three steps were necessary. First a reduction of interest second important enlargement of construction activities public and private and third more aggressive easement by the central banks.

The recent efforts at managed recovery represent a disposition on the part of leaders to influence the course of events through deliberate planned action instead of continuing a policy of haphazard drifting.

MARKET SHOWS FAIRLY GOOD UNDERTONE

Trading Drags Along as Traders Await U. S. Steel Report, Due After Close

NEW YORK, July 28—(AP)—A partial moratorium seemed to be in effect in the stock market today, where prices maintained a fairly good undertone, despite the state of speculative torpor.

With United States Steel's [illegible] and rattlings announced [illegible] after the close traders [illegible] to mark time. Trading [illegible] along at yesterday's [illegible] which was the slowest in many weeks, even though the volume of listed stock has more than tripled in that period. The bond market, however, was a little more active with foreign issues sold for the Chilean issuing rate pencers.

United States Steel common moved narrowly.

Wall street appears to have become reconciled to a cut in United States Steel's room-time dividend rate of $7. A $5 rate is expected in well-informed circles. It is said in fact that on the whole a $5 rate might be construed as [illegible] favorable in view of the fact that the steel companies can always hope to earn preferred dividends under current conditions.

Although the foreign outlook still has it worrisome aspects the reverses in such foreign bonds as Germans, Brazilians and Argentine issues was encouraging.

While there appears to have been some delay in the conclusion of negotiations for a loan to the Bank of England from the Bank of France to support sterling exchange bankers here state that the Bank of England will have no difficulty in getting any credit that it may need for New York bankers will be glad to extend and if necessary.

The railroad earnings statements for June which have been pouring in in considerable numbers still appear to make a little better comparison with 1930 than May did. But the improvement appears to have been largely at the expense of receipts. [illegible] New York Central's returns continue disappointing. Earnings of this premier carrier for the first six months appear to have been around 60 cents a share against actual dividend payments of $3.50.

Tomorrow's weekly freight car loadings report is expected to show a small decline from the previous week.

While preliminary estimates of last week's crude oil output indicate a gain of more than 46,000 barrels in the daily average this appears to have been largely due to a rush to get oil in the East Texas field before it is brought under proration. Midcontinent crude prices continue to improve.

West Penn Power Sells Bond Issue

W. C. Langley & Co. has purchased $10,000,000 West Penn Power Company first 4 per cent bonds due 1961, the proceeds to retire $5,100,000 5 per cent bonds and for other corporate purposes. The bonds will be offered shortly.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 28—Grain prices averaged lower early today influenced by indications of a break up of the heat wave that threatened hopes of bumper corn crop. Wheat established new low price records for the season. Corn opened unchanged to ¼ cent up, corn soon underwent a general sag. Wheat started unchanged to ¼ off and later declined all around.

Kitty Is Threatened When She Meets Arline

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Viola pulled herself up out of the water to the edge of the swimming pool and stared at Peter.

"Man," she exclaimed, "you said a crocodile's mouthful that time."

"I beg your pardon," muttered Peter, showing some embarrassment.

"This is Miss Carson, my roommate and pal, Peter, she doesn't mind how you knock our friends," I said.

"So this is Peter." Viola hesitated and then extended her hand. "Peter, I'm for you."

"Thank you, Miss Carson." Peter said, gravely. He shook hands, excused himself, and hurried away with his tool kit.

I jumped back into the water but Viola stood staring at Peter as he disappeared through a side door. Then she jumped into the water beside me.

"Peter is some boy," she declared.

"You can have him and welcome," I answered with a laugh.

Forrest challenged me to race to the end of the tank and we were off. Of course, he beat me for I'm not an expert swimmer. Few girls there are who have had as little chance for it as I.

That was certainly one hot party after the swimming.

REFUSES TO DRINK

As Viola was dressing, she spoke of Peter again.

"Oh let up, Viola," I begged. "I'm good and sore at Peter. The big lollipop! He reminds me of those funny pictures of a professional reformer. The poor sap—when he gets around to die he'll never know he has lived."

"Your every word is law!" Viola said in a satirical, singsong voice and then she laughed at me. But she didn't mention Peter after that.

"How about tonight?" she asked.

"Act silly and keep wise—that's my motto," I said.

"K. O. Honestly, if some of these flappers were my kids I'd put them in a convent and keep 'em until they were 40."

Later in the evening I danced with Forrest a while and he insisted on taking me for some crap shooting. He was awfully jolly and nice, but constantly urging me to drink with him.

"You are trying to make me tell my right name, Forrest," I said, as for the twentieth time I refused more liquor.

"Not at all. I am trying to find out how much you love me," he declared.

"As if that mattered."

"Nothing else matters, Katie," he said, rather gravely.

I began to wonder if his seriousness wasn't the real thing. I began to dream dreams of marrying Forrest. I believed we would surely have one gay life of it together.

Synopsis

Because Katherine Mason believes in playing around and having a gay time she finds herself deeply involved in troubles. She jilts Peter Thompson because he is poor. She expects to marry rich Thad Parsons but he marries Arline Sargent who is named in a divorce scandal within six months. Katherine is getting fond of Forrest Malvern, a rich man of 40, who had been sweet on her old friend, Dolly Hawkins, who disappeared long ago. Thad is going to divorce Arline. Katherine tells Thad she will never marry him. Thad's wife offers her $50,000 to help her in the divorce case. Kitty agrees to swear to a false story against Thad, but when the trial opens she shocks Arline by telling the truth. As the result, Thad wins his case. Kitty and Viola attend one of Susie Lawlor's parties. Kitty sees Thompson, who has been called as a repairman.

Now Go On

We played around and danced, played silly games and watched a lot of the others get decidedly sophisticated until dawn.

It was a melancholy headachy bunch that straggled down the next afternoon. Not that I felt that way, for I had sense enough not to let Forrest see me silly with drink. I had too much at stake for I had decided if I had any charm at all I would make him fall seriously in love with me.

FANNY JUST FRIEND

Forrest drove Viola and myself back to New York about 10 that night, just when Susie's guests were beginning to pep up again and start all over with their games and dancing, bridge and cocktails.

Viola ran up to our apartment and at Forrest's request I sat in the car with him for a few minutes to talk.

"Never again," he said, "will I be gone so long from you."

I laughed sarcastically.

"Don't you believe it?"

"Thad Parsons used to say that to me," I explained.

"And you loved him?"

"No, Forrest, it wasn't that, he just hurt my pride by marrying Arline—and it served him right."

"He was a fool, Katie, we are in for some mighty nice parties this winter."

"I hope so," I said, honestly enough, "unless Fanny Hutton objects."

"Fanny wouldn't mean a thing to me if it wasn't that she was the wife of my old friend and partner. She has a silly idea that I ought to marry her. I never had the least intention of that and now that we are such good pals I'm afraid Fanny will have to get herself a new boy friend."

"I've got to go up. See you soon," I said.

He kissed me and as he helped me out he said, as if just remembering it, "Oh, I brought back some nice little trinkets I want to show you—some of them are for you."

"You are a dear, sweet boy," I told him, and ran into the entrance. I had already thanked him for the swell Mandarin coat.

Now what do you suppose Forrest considers a "little trinket?" I asked Viola after I told her what he said.

"Oh, anything from a naughty postcard to the crown jewels of Russia," she said.

The next day we got a glad surprise at the Miers establishment.

There was to be a fashion show at Palm Beach. The people behind it had big gown shops in New York and several other cities and opened branches at Palm Beach and Miami during the winter season.

"Last year they had one," Mrs. Miers said, excitedly, "and they let them society girls wear the models..."

WELCOME TRIP

She paused and made a grimace.

"Could they wear them right? You know they couldn't. This year these people want I should let them have girls—you and Viola, to wear our own models. They are taking two more girls from the Baumstein establishment and some of their own."

Viola and I stared at each other and then grinned.

"What a terrible hardship!" yelled Viola, doing a little dance step.

"But how can they make it pay?" I asked.

"Always Katie thinks of safety." Mr. Miers said, with approval. He explained that it was advertised that all the models shown at the fashion show were to be had at their shops down there.

"And I suppose you have to pay the freight!" I said.

"Only our regular salaries. All your expenses are paid. You'll be gone a week—if you go," Mrs. Miers said.

"Try and stop us!" I shouted.

During the next two weeks we were getting ready for the trip, being fitted to the line of stuff we were to wear, from bathing suits to beach pajamas, sport clothes and evening creations.

We were so busy and worked so hard that we went out only a few times during that fortnight. I was out with both Forrest and Chubb. Forrest said it would be a nice outing and he made me a present of a costly little camera.

Chubb said it would be wonderful if I would marry him down there as soon as the fashion show was over, as he intended going down. I told him that if he was going down expecting to marry me he'd better stay right in town.

There were twelve of us, two from Miers, two from Baumstein's place and the others were girls from the retail company. I had never been further south than Germantown, the time I went to a party there, and neither had Viola. We got an awful kick of what we could see from the train.

We were lodged right in one of the swellest hotels, and old lady Miers knew her onions. Aside from the clothes we were to display at the show she had equipped us with wonderful things to wear on every occasion down there. None of the other girls had been provided with such an equipment.

ARLINE THREATENING

Perhaps we didn't put on the dog, Viola and myself, the first forenoon when we went down to the beach at the bathing hour in some pajamas that caused every woman there to stare and whisper!

Five minutes after we were on the beach I met Curt Lawlor. He recognized me and Viola and began to chat with us. If he held any bitterness against me for what I did to Arline Parsons he didn't show it.

We were having a gay time, chatting together, when I saw Arline come running up toward us. That didn't surprise me, for I had a hunch she would be wherever Curt Lawlor was.

She didn't recognize me until she was right up within arm's reach and when she saw who I was she gave a little squeal—as if she had been hurt.

"You!" she said.

"Why deny it?" I said, smiling and trying to avoid a scene.

"If you——" she choked, got her breath, stepped nearer and shook her finger under my nose. "If you are here after tonight's train leaves for the North, your life won't be worth 2 cents!"

That made me angry.

"You've been reading dime novels," I sneered, "or else seeing too many movies."

"You quit Palm Beach, I'm warning you, or your life won't be worth 2 cents," she repeated.

I did a foolish thing. I laughed in her face.

She made a wild leap for me.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A Red Geranium

Beautiful Girl Forsakes Beaus for Mother

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Florette's girl friends down in the Italian district below Greenwich Village were inclined to make fun of her.

It was not because Florette came from Tuscany and was a blonde, instead of a raven-wing brunette. Her friends rather envied her for this.

It was because Florette did not go around with boy friends. She worked daily as a cashier in the Florenza provision shop and after her working hours she was with her invalid mother most of the time.

"For goodness sake, Florette," Ninzi Bianco said to her, "why don't you go out with Tony? He's crazy about you."

"Mother needs me."

"Not every minute, that's silly, and you will never learn to speak up-to-date English if you don't go around with our crowd. Tony isn't the only one who wants to make friends with you."

Florette shrugged.

Often Ninzi, or others of her acquaintances chided her for not going about to dances and shows with the young men, but Florette made little argument.

It was true that she felt she must be with her mother, but it was equally true that Florette was somewhat saddened at times when her friends related their gloriously happy times on excursions, at dances, shows and parties.

She would have enjoyed all of these things. Yet her mother was lonesome without her and would not be well for a long time, so Florette came home always smiling and had plenty of neighborhood gossip to relate—gossip she heard while working in the provision shop.

Before the night of the big fiesta a block away, Tony came into the store and asked Florette to go. There would be dancing in the street and feasting and all sorts of fun.

REFUSES INVITATION

"You will be near home, you can go a little while," he pleaded.

She said that she would "see." But running home as usual during her luncheon hour she found her mother on the verge of a breakdown, for it had been two years ago this saint's day that Florette's father had died.

Florette told Tony that her mother was worse and she could not go.

"You could if you wanted to," he insisted.

Florette shook her pretty head and turned to arranging the sales slips, to hide her tears.

That night she went home with a lot of cheerful gossip, and prepared an especially dainty dinner for her mother.

Not for a moment did Mrs. Manchi, Florette's mother, suspect how unhappy the girl was, but when their bed time came, Florette felt better, for her mother told her no woman ever had so sweet a daughter.

Ninzi and others seemed to go out of their way the next day to tell Florette all about the wonderful time they had, the many dances, the great feast and the big party at Dr. Scalta's.

"Don't be so foolish—shutting yourself up all the time," Ninzi scolded, "you'll never have any fun or get yourself a nice husband."

"I much rather be with my mother," she answered bravely.

Tony never dropped in at the shop to ask Florette again to go places with him. He would nod gravely and that was all. Some of the other young men evidently came to the conclusion that Florette was "snooty"—they were up to all the idioms of the moment—or else that something was wrong with her.

BUYS FLOWER

Once in a great while on Sundays, Florette's mother could get out as far as the square with her and sit a while on the benches, but most of the time she remained within the three little rooms that made their home.

Daylight saving time had come and here were several hours of daylight for Florette after working hours. Coming back from the drug store she saw a wagon that was a blaze of blossoms.

"Flower — Plant! Flower — Plant!" the man was shouting.

He was showing a pot of blue hydrangeas to a woman as Florette stepped up to examine the profusion of blossoms.

"Nice-a plant, lady?"

A red-cheeked young man leaned forward. She had not seen him back of the driver's seat.

"One of those red geranium plants—a nice one, for my mother, how much?"

"Different price—twenty-fi', thirty-fi', forty."

"As big one as you can for 25—it's for my sick mother."

Florette smiled at him as she spoke.

"Oh! So? Here then, may she recover quick," and the red-faced young man selected one of the best of his red geraniums, a 40-cent one.

The other man had turned back and saw Florette handing the young man the quarter. In a torrent of Italian, he scolded the young man for giving a 40-cent plant for a quarter.

And in an equal torrent of Italian the young man explained to his "Padre" that this girl's mother was very sick and he felt sorry for her.

The older man softened at once and smiled at the girl. Florette then thanked him in Italian.

The older man seemed surprised.

"From Tuscany?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, when I was little, 10 years. We came from Empoli!"

"From Empoli? Empoli on the Arno?"

Florette nodded. He asked her name and she told him, and about her father's death and mother's illness.

"Ha—" he selected a little tree laden with scarlet blossoms, little polyanthus, "take this to your mother, tell her I come from Empoli. Enrico, wrap it in the green paper."

Florette smiled at him.

"The Padre talk always of Empoli on the Arno, I was born there," Enrico said.

"He was right—I remember. It is beautiful there," Florette told him.

Her mother was delighted with the flowers, and then she became quite excited when Florette told her about the nice young Enrico and his father.

"If ever you see him again, ask his name, it may be that I knew him," she said.

"He is just a peddler, passing through the street, we shall never see him again. I am sorry I did not ask his name."

But Florette did see him, only a few days later.

She told her mother. It was at the noon hour.

"Here," said her mother, "wrap this chestnut cake and take it to him and ask his name. Tell him he will remember the big chestnuts that grow along the Arno."

So Florette dutifully went back and found the flower wagon. Enrico was selling boxes of pansies. His father recognized her and waved.

INFORMED OF ADDRESS

Rather timidly Florette handed him the cake and gave him her mother's message. The man was greatly pleased. His name, he said, was Torelli. Florette promised not to forget.

She had not gone far when Enrico overtook her.

"The Padre wants to know where your mother lives—and so do I," he said.

Florette blushed and her cheeks went pink, but she told him and he carefully put it down in a little note book. Then he lifted his hat, handed her two roses and went back.

Florette's mother was disappointed that she did not recall anyone of the name of Torelli, but then, she admitted, they had lived in a little place outside the city, she knew but few and it all seemed so long ago.

"The roses," Florette said, seeing her mother's eyes dim, "are for you."

That wasn't telling lies, she figured, and then she thought she would temper it somewhat, so she added, "Enrico gave one to each of us—I give you mine."

"Enrico? You call this man Enrico?"

"His son, such nice eyes and red cheeks and good smile, and he is so kind. I—I heard his father call him Enrico."

Her mother nodded.

The next week when Florette went home for her luncheon there reposed on the table a bottle of wine.

"He was here—your Enrico, and brought the wine."

"It was so good, but how funny you are to call him my Enrico."

Her mother laughed gaily and Florette did not know until later what she was really laughing at.

Enrico had left the wine, a gift from his father to Florette's mother, and he had asked the address of where Florette worked and the time she would be out. That was why Florette found on her cashier's desk a beautiful red geranium.

"Nice looking Romeo brought it in for you, Florette," said the proprietor's wife.

VISIT FRIENDS

"His name," Florette said, innocently, is not Romeo, it is Enrico."

The proprietor's wife, to Florette's surprise, seemed to find something laughable in this.

Again there came a bottle of wine from Signor Torelli, but his son, Enrico, brought it, one evening. He remained nearly two hours.

"I like your Enrico," Florette's mother said, after he had gone.

"But don't be absurd—he's not my Enrico."

"The Saints know."

Florette kissed her mother.

Some weeks later Enrico's father called while Florette was away.

When she got home her mother was cheerful and happy.

"We are going over in Jersey tomorrow to visit the Torellis," she announced.

"The trip is too far for you, mother—"

"They are coming Sunday with a car."

Florette and her mother visited the Torellis. Florette saw the neat place with its immense hot houses, and Enrico stood over to a pretty little cottage. It had been an old cottage, but he had had it fixed over to sell for profit. However, if Florette would marry him, it would be their home.

Florette would, and did.

"Can you imagine!" Ninzi Bianco exclaimed. She had been over in Jersey to attend the wedding. "Imagine Florette marrying a handsome rich man with a home and everything—you should have seen the bungalow or cottage—honestly window boxes at every window—and full of red geraniums!"

JOINS IMMORTALS

This is Darlene Gluck, motion picture star, who has been awarded a medal for the most realistic performance of the year. In a scene where the leading man presents her with a string of pearls she didn't cross her hands on her breast, roll her eyes toward the ceiling and squeal, "For ME?" German directors are gutteral with envy and Miss Gluck's contract has been renewed at an increase of $5,000 a week. When interviewed Miss Gluck said that she had no dogs, no books and is never home anyway.

Fagan's Narrow Escape

It Is Important That Everything Possible Be Learned About the Plot to Assassinate Him.

Congratulations are in order for P. T. Fagan, district president of the United Mine Workers, on his narrow escape from assassination.

It is fortunate not only for Fagan but for the people of this district that the plot to kill him failed, because he has stood as a bulwark against the Red elements in the miners' ranks who seek under the banner of trade unionism to destroy American institutions that are precious to the people.

Fagan has fought a valiant fight on two fronts. On one side he has fought oppressive coal operators, and on the other side the Communists.

It is important that the plot to kill Fagan shall be sifted to the bottom. The fact that the attempt was futile and the would-be assassin himself killed should not detract from the thoroughness of the investigation.

Nor should the investigating authorities suppose that tracing the responsibility for the conspiracy is of importance to Fagan alone. In view of the principles for which he has been fighting, the information may be and probably is of vital concern to the public.

The Taxicab Strike

The Public Would Like to See Service Resumed in Full While the Grievances Are Discussed.

Neither the Parmelee Transportation Company, which operates Pittsburgh's taxicab monoply, nor its striking cab drivers have taken the public fully into their confidence as to the questions at issue in the strike. Consequently the public has no decided opinion as to the merits of the controversy.

The people's principal concern has been over their inability to obtain taxi service. To be sure, cabs have been available; but there have been so many cases in which cabs were attacked by the strikers or their friends that many persons have been and still are afraid to ride in them.

Many of the strikers have voted to return to work, but it is reported that several hundred are still holding out.

Mayor Kline, as mediator, plans a conference at which an effort will be made to adjust the grievances. Pending the final outcome of the discussions service should be resumed in full. If the strikers are unwilling to agree to such an arrangement, the police should redouble their efforts to protect the taxis.

One way to protect them is to arrest and prosecute the miscreants who have been seizing, wrecking and burning cabs.

Care of the Old Folks

It Is Their Children's Duty to Keep Them Out of Institutions If It Can Possibly Be Avoided.

We are in hearty sympathy with the view of Mrs. Geraldine A. Dickson, as expressed in a letter to the Sun-Telegraph, concerning children's obligation to take care of their aged parents. Mrs. Dickson writes:

"The recent tragedy brings public attention to the old folks. Too many of them are stuffed in public homes and charitable institutions that should be taken care of by the children that they have spent their lives raising. Perhaps this tragedy will bring some of these selfish people to a realization of their responsibilities."

There are, to be sure, many circumstances under which children may be justified in placing their parents in institutions. If the old folks are so feeble and helpless that they require constant attention and their children, because of having to go out and earn a living, are unable to give them the attention, a well managed institution is the place for them.

Old folks are better off in an institution, too, than in the home of a son or daughter if the wife or husband of the latter is going to be disagreeable over having to take care of the parents-in-law.

But the justification should be unquestionable before children go to the extreme of placing their fathers and mothers in asylums which, however attractive they may be, are not homes in the sense that the dwelling in which one lives with loving relatives is a home.

What the Railroads Need

Legal Obstacles Which Discourage the Spirit of Modernism Should Be Removed.

The presentation of the railroads' case in the freight rate increase inquiry before the Interstate Commerce Commission emphasizes the financial plight of the carriers.

As an emergency relief measure, some increase in revenues may be found to be necessary.

But genuine, lasting rehabilitation of railroad credit must rest on solider foundations.

Legal hobbles, which discourage the spirit of modernism in railroading, should be removed.

These obstacles include vestiges of the anti-trust laws, which were not wholly effaced by the transportation act of 1920, the Panama Canal act, which keeps the carriers from engaging in coastwise shipping, and the Dennison act, which prevents the railroads from embarking on dovetailed shipping operations on the Great Lakes and other internal waters.

The great railroad corporations, under vigilant public regulation, should be encouraged to become vast co-ordinators of all means of transportation.

The railroad executives should forthwith enter all phases of the transportation industry.

They should be authorized to co-ordinate steam railways with buses, motor trucks, steamers and barges, airplanes and even pipe lines.

They should be stimulated to adapt the best in each method of transportation to the needs of the traveling and shipping public, who, with railroad employes, should share fully in the economies of better integrated transportation systems.

In the existing emergency, railroad executives of the East should be importuned to compose their differences in order to facilitate the consummation of the merger in the eastern territory.

This four-system consolidation in the East should be regarded only as the prelude to vaster amalgamations of coast to coast systems, running lateral connections from Mexico to the Canadian border.

The prototype for such highly modernized, thoroughly co-ordinated transportation systems is to be found in the two Canadian transcontinental systems.

The time for petty political bickering over the railroads has passed.

National well-being will be heightened by better conducted transportation units, which will in the long run give faster and better service at a lower cost.

In looking into the current emergency distress, the Interstate Commerce Commission has a fine opportunity to delve into the more enduring aspects of improving the status of America's arteries of transportation.

The Cake Line Forms on the Other Side

By the other side Mr. Opper means "The other side of the ATLANTIC."

You see no cake lines forming on THIS side. You see a bread line here and there, an unemployment line, a "When do you think the depression will end?" line. But Uncle Sam's CAKE line seems to be an exclusively European enterprise.

Big fierce men can take care of themselves, they don't need cake, but you feel sorry for that little girl. She was just made to eat cake, and you can imagine her feelings.

This takes you back to Shakespeare's "How use doth breed a habit in a man." Uncle Sam got the habit of giving things away during the war; money, men, everything he had and, apparently, he cannot stop.

But old Prohibition will stop him. And so will his three little friends, "Shoot, Boot and Snoop." Just give them time.

Prophecy

The prophets now have done with prophecy
And speak no more: the seers have closed their eyes,
And there are none who peer for you, for me
Into the immemorial mysteries.
No wise astrologer with starward gaze
Will for a coin give us a horoscope,
To brim the emptied goblets of our days
Once more with sparkling vintages of hope.
But sometimes, strangely, in our hearts a voice
From ways untrodden will reverberate,
As though a speaker strongly cried: "Rejoice!"
Soon, soon the day will dawn for which you wait!
And then life glows with happiness intense,
So clean, so keen in this prophetic sense!

FRANCE DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS.—(By Mail.)—The Parisian department stores, or grands magasins, are a glitter of mirrors and confusion of bird-like chirpings that bewilder us all. Our sedate emporiums are mausoleums in comparison. Here they bear such grandiose names as The Ladies' Paradise, Spring, The Garden of Loveliness and Pygmalion.

It seems incredible that such opera bouffe capers could be galvanized into commercial prosperity but they are. When one enters the portals luxuriantly bearded and frock coated attendants seem to fly from all directions, bowing, scraping and murmuring polite "Bon Jours."

No matter how trifling the purchase, the customer must undergo the grand promenade to the brace of cashiers where it is gravely recorded by hand in a series of ponderous ledgers. A sale that would require two minutes in New York with all the fumididdles here takes about a half hour.

The biggest stores divide profits mathematically between employees according to their responsibility and activity. Thus everyone receives not only a salary but a commission dependent upon ability. Prices are only a fraction above the wholesale cost and success is based upon a big turnover.

This morning I visited the great Bon Marche in the Latin Quarter. Its rise is typically American but the sort seldom achieved in France. Its proprietor, Aristide Boucicaut, was a poor clerk who starting seventeen years ago with a "hole-in-the-wall" now occupies a vast five-block area.

Ten of his employees have, according to Gallic standards, become millionaires. In the Bon Marche are thirty-two interpreters, speaking fluently such languages as Chinese, Japanese, Hindustani and even dialects of the South Seas. I shopped for gloves alongside a desert-tanned Beduoin. He was buying perfume, by the way.

My American interpreter was a native of Ottumwa, Iowa. He wore an Elks' lapel button and had taken on a highly British "Very good, sir!" In a moment of confidence he told me he made 300 francs a week—$12. But added he and his French wife lived in a seven-room house with a garden for $62 a year, on a nine-year lease.

At an adjoining terrasse table today I was interested in a coal black flapper and her hatless boy friend. Her features were distinctly negroidal but her black hair was straight. Her companion was a fair blonde Englishman. She spoke French to the waiter but excellent English to her friend. My first conjecture was she was Egyptian or perhaps a Senegalese. Yet eavesdropping I heard her speak of an "offay"—which is, I believe, the Harlem term for a white man. Anyway, they moved off languidly toward Pont Neuf arm in arm. And I seemed the only one to gaze after them.

The pink marble palace of Anna Gould, jutting the fashionable Bois de Bolougne, and its sombre walled garden are always to me a chrystalization of sadness. One tragedy has followed another during her French exile, emphasized a year ago by the suicide of her son by her former marriage to Count Boni di Castellane. Boni, once a bouttonniered beaux of the boulevard, is now confined to a wheel chair—a wasted wraith of his former debonaire self. Yet Boni crowded many glamorous lives into his 63 years.

One may buy a pearl necklace at less than one-third of boom day prices. The pearl market whirled into a tail-spin eight months ago when Rosenthal, the so-called pearl king, went into bankruptcy. When anyone finds a new field in Africa, the syndicate gives him the bum's rush.

Oh, yes, the big department store Galleries Lafayette has opened up its Salon Dedicure with 14 attendants. Here the ladies may have their toe-nails glossed to a bright red, pink or green, as desired. THE THERMIONIC VALVE

By Archibald Henderson

The invention of the thermionic valve effected nothing short of a revolution both in the transmitting and receiving apparatus used in wireless telephony. Its history and importance have been pointed out by Ellison Hawks in the Book of Electrical Wonders.

The pioneer inventor in this field was Sir Ambrose Fleming, who in 1904 discovered that, with some slight alterations, an electric lamp could be made to act as a detector and rectifier of electrical oscillations. This device was widely used as a receiver in long-distance wireless telegraphy on account of its sensitiveness.

In the early days of his work in the incandescent lamp, Edison noticed that after continual use the inside of the bulb became blackened as if covered with a fine deposit. Edison discovered a peculiar action which came to be known as the "Edison effect." He fixed inside the bulb a small metal plate, but insulated from it. When this plate was connected to the positive terminal of a battery, an electrical current passed along the wire from the plate; but the current would not leap the gap when the negative terminal was connected to the plate. In his absorption with the invention of the electric bulb, Edison set aside this problem for investigation at some future time.

With our present knowledge of electrons and protons, the explanation of the Edison effect is simple. When the filament was heated a stream of electrons flew off and attached themselves to the positively charged plate; and continuing their course to the positive terminal of the battery, caused the galvanometer when they passed through it to register. A similar explanation applies when the plate was negatively charged, since the negative electrons in the plate repelled the negative electrons in the filament.

It was this principle of the Edison effect which Sir Ambrose Fleming used in 1904 in his invention of the Fleming oscillation valve. Instead of using a rectangular plate, as Edison had done, Sir Ambrose used a cylindrical plate surrounding the filament, which greatly increased the efficiency of the valve.

Three years later, Lee de Forest hit upon an ingenious idea which has proved transforming, literally, in perfecting wireless telephony. He inserted a perforated metal plate between the filament and the unperforated plate. This perforated plate is known as the grid; and the valve in the modern form, which includes the grid, is known as the three-electrode valve.

To illustrate, the filament is bombarding the plate with electrons. The grid, acting as a spasmodic shield between machine gun and target, resembles a Venetian blind that has its slats alternately opened and closed, by the presence or absence of an impulse from the aerial. When the positive half of the aerial current reaches the grid the slats are opened, and the negative electrons are allowed free access to the target; but the reverse phenomenon takes place when the negative half of the impulse reaches the grid, stopping the flow of electrons to the plate. De Forest's invention accomplished the important purpose of magnifying or amplifying these signals.

Prosperity Loan Linked With Long Term Planning

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

THE proposal of a prosperity loan of $5,000,000,000 for social reconstruction and the restoration of normal business is symptomatic of a new and progressive manner of economic thought.

It is closely related to the demand for long term industrial planning and economic co-ordination.

It is a phase of the protest against blind competition and anarchy in business, which inevitably lead to periodical breakdowns.

Modern scientific economists do not accept the view that the machine and business efficiency are inimical to social welfare.

But they recognize that unplanned, unco-ordinated use of modern industrial technology has temporarily turned what should be a social blessing into a social blight.

The underlying need is to develop human agencies to control the vast productive machinery which the skill and ingenuity of man has invented.

Only scornful mismanagement in the large has served to bring wholesale starvation amidst glutted markets, and widespread unemployment when vast quantities of useful work need to be done.

WITH the economic machine out of mesh, there is a general lack of industrial balance.

Distress in one place brings additional hardship in others.

Depression breeds new troubles, and hard times proceed in a vicious circle.

Scientific economic thought recognizes that at present a basic reason for the impairment of purchasing power lies in the distinctly subnormal volume of new construction.

While private initiative is hesitant and fearful, it has been proposed that the federal government break the deadlock by embarking on a vastly enlarged program of essential public works, including improvement of highways, flood control, development of power sites, reforestration, and the elimination of grade crossings.

Such a plan would quickly absorb idle manpower, and augment purchasing power for consumption of goods, benefiting merchants and manufacturers all along the line.

UNDER intelligent, long range planning, both public and private construction, which should be greatly expanded when ordinary trade is slack, should likewise be enormously retarded when business becomes active.

Thus in a planned economy, the construction industry can be used as a business stabilizer, flattening out the peaks of prosperity as well as the troughs of depression.

In the present emergency, with a third winter of unemployment threatened, the Federal government can prove a decisive factor toward alleviating distress by taking steps to start picks and shovels a-flying. Actual work authorized will be far more effective than the issuance of statements by public officials concerning prospects.

Raising the volume of construction will prove of maximum effectiveness, if accompanied by a revival of public confidence, and by a wise policy of deliberate credit easement by the banks.

Since intelligent planning is the basis for successful intervention in an economic situation, President Hoover should lose no time in formulating a program, and submitting it to Congress in special session.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

The Henry Colters are frightfully fussed. Young Jim Dalton, who works in the service station, has dared to come courting daughter Rose.

Jim "may be all right in his way," says Bank President Colters, but what nerve he has to think that he is "worthy of Rose!"

Rose, you'll admit, is quite an eyeful. Amber, coral, ivory—that is her color scheme. Streamline body, eight-cylinder action. Dances, rides, golfs, swims, skis—and what a line that girl can swing! All the smartest patter from Miami to Waikiki—

Yes, Rose is both peppy and pictorial. And the world at large will agree with the Colters that a young man must step plenty to be worthy of her. But—WHY? WHY ALL THIS EMPHASIS ON A YOUNG MAN BEING WORTHY OF ROSE AND NO EMPHASIS ON ROSE BEING WORTHY OF A YOUNG MAN?

Consider their respective values as human beings. There's Jim—the average young American working man. He has a smootch on his nose, grease on his overalls and he frequently says "ain't" for "isn't." But he has had training and discipline. He knows himself and his world. He has acquired a sense of values. Whatever his natural cussed inclinations, life has licked Jim into shape. Life has expected Jim to qualify and Jim has qualified as a Regular Guy.

On the other hand there's Rose—all the Rosies. Not the working girl. She's usually as regular as Jim. But the guarded home girls, who aren't brilliant enough to have careers, or poor enough to need jobs—how do they rate as citizens? As prospective partners for hard-working young men? To be brutally frank, their rating is not much. They are vivacious, sweet, pretty and amusing—which seems quite enough for any love-sick young swain. But after he has come out of his daze, what does he find?

ALL TOO OFTEN HE FINDS THAT HE HAS ACCUMULATED A SILLY, SELFISH, LAZY, CONCEITED, DANGEROUSLY UNRELIABLE KNICK-KNACK. Whose upkeep he'll have to pay, regardless of her performance, until divorce do them part—and for weary months thereafter.

And it's easy enough to see how Rosie gets that way. Had she been born 30 years earlier, she would have learned to be a lady and a housekeeper, as her mother learned before her. Which would have knocked sense into Rosie just as his service station job knocked sense into Jim. But Rosie's "modern." And "modern girls are supposed to do something better than stick around the house." Modern girls have freedom and equality. So what do the Rosies do that's better than sticking around the house? They stick around the streets and hotel lobbies, tennis courts, swimming pools and dance halls. And how do they prove their freedom and equality? By raising diversified whoopee until some young man comes along and takes them off dad's hands. And, as long as they don't involve themselves in scandal, we call them Nice Girls and think that any young man is lucky who gets them.

WOULD WE CALL JIM A "NICE BOY" IF THAT WERE ALL HE HAD DONE WITH LIFE FOR THE FIRST TWENTY-FIVE YEARS?

We boast plenty about our Glorious Girls. We think they're the grandest on earth. But the plain truth is that we have a breed of female in America today, the like of which has never been seen before. They are neither ladies, workers, honest loafers or frank sinners. Yet they demand, and GET, all the respect, rewards, freedom and fun commonly accorded to all four classes of citizens. And it must be admitted that they put on a good show. If you like the Follies, they're 100 per cent. But if you're looking for a partner that's something else.

The horrid truth is that the average idle, pampered "home-girl" is a much greater menace to matrimony than the average hard-working young man. Jim takes a much bigger chance when he marries Rosie than Rosie takes when she marries Jim.

IF ANYONE NEEDS TO PROVE THAT SHE'S WORTHY, IT'S ROSE.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

It is possible that you are too contented.

You are extreme in getting the most out of life with the least effort.

Easily satisfied, you do not use a fraction of your physical and mental equipment.

The small accomplishments that are yours, what you have gained in the way of this world's goods, though comparatively little, meets your desires and ambition.

This means you have come to the peak of your life—you're going down the hill.

There is no permanent stopping place so your contentment means the downward path.

A satisfied man will not progress—he is without driving force.

Too many of us regulate our demands by the least of effort concerned.

Of the future we give little heed when we should be accumulating for the lean years which come in every man's life.

So much easier to say to one's self—"you'll be taken care of someway."

But heartaches and bitter regrets follow the line of the least resistance.

Your earning days will pass—why don't you provide for the lean ones now?
